2 BAY STATE BOYS LOST ON TROOPSHIP

AMERICAN 'DIRECTOR' IN IRISH PLOT

Bernstorff and John Devoy Named in British Official Statement

By International News Service.

London, May 25.—Count von Bernstorff, former German Ambassador to the United States, and Captain von Papen, arch-German plotter in America, were involved in the conspiracy to start a revolution in Ireland, in which German troops were to take part, it is officially known today as the result o the issuance of a statement on the Sinn Fein situation by the government.

This month a German submarine crusted off the west coast of Ireland ready to unload (word missing) for a new revolution, it was revealed. It was planned that the Irish-German plot was to come to a head at the same time as the launching of the offensive of the western front, which would be draining England of her armed forces.

DIRECTED BY COMMITTEE.

The arrest of a man who had been landed on the Irish coast from a German submarine, and the arrest of the Sinn Fein leaders nipped the conspiracy in the bud.

Pomenters of the contemplated uprising were an Irish committee and an "Irish revolution director in America," whose identity has not been revealed. John Devoy, operator of a successful Irish-American line of communication, is involved, as well as the Rev. Fr. John T. Nicholson, an American citizen of Irish birth. Von Papen and Bernstorff, it was learned,

QUARTERMASTER'S CORPS ESTIMATE $5,781,910,383

Washington, May 25.—The quartermaster's corps of the army will need a total of $5,781,910,383 during the fiscal year of 1919, according to the estimates submitted to the Treasury Department today. This is an increase over estimates already made public of $1,335,100,342. The addition to the estimates is due to the increased army plans of Secretary of War Baker, which he already has communicated to the House military affairs committee.

13 HUNS SHOT FOR PLOT WITH BRITISH AT OSTEND

Amsterdam, May 25.—Thirteen German sailors at the German submarine base at Ostend were court martialed and shot, and two others were sentenced to twenty years on the charge of attempted treason in connection with the recent British raid, according to information secured from Belgian fishermen from Bruges.

McCALL GETS WOOL FROM WHITE HOUSE SHEEP

Governor is seen here inspecting the fleece which came from Washington today and which he is to auction on Monday on the Common for the benefit of the Red Cross.

Governor McCall received by parcel post at the State House today the "White House" wool which he is to auction off on Boston Common Monday for the benefit of the Red Cross.

This wool was clipped from one of the sheep in the flock which keeps the White House lawn closely cropped.

The parcel post package, which was delivered at the executive office in the State House by Patrick R. Powers, mail carrier, contained two pounds of the patriotic fleece.

It happened that, when the wool arrived, Representative George S. Baldwin of Brookline, a leading member of the House, was nearby. He is slightly bald. He was asked if he intended to bid on the wool at the Governor's Red Cross auction. He replied:

"Well, I might buy some for my head."

PRINCE ARTHUR GUEST AT THE WHITE HOUSE

Washington, 25.—Prince Arthur of Connaught, cousin of King George of England, today paid his respects to America's hero dead when, with Earl Reading, the British Ambassador, and his suite he visited the Arlington Cemetery. He then lunched with President Wilson at the White House. This afternoon the royal visitor visited the Senate and later called at the House of Representatives.

UNITED WORK IS WINNING FOR RED CROSS

The $100,000,000 mark set for the second Red Cross drive was reported to be in sight today by Washington officials.

At noon the official figures for New England were $6,727,159, and with a number of districts yet to be heard from local Red Cross officers were sure that the quota of $7,000,000 would be exceeded.

All over the country reports were being sent to Washington to the effect that quotas were nearly completed, and it is believed that the fund will be heavily over-subscribed.

Maine claimed the honor of being the first New England State to exceed its quota. Frank L. Hawson, chairman, announced that the State was over the top by $24,625, a total of 104 per cent.

Reports from national divisions as issued from Washington this morning were as follows:

New England $6,640,000 with Bos-

U. S. FOOD BOARD TO ACT

Half the Infants of the Country Poorly Nourished Because of High Prices

Washington, May 25—At least one half of the babies in the country are deprived of their normal supply of milk because of high prices, was the startling conclusion drawn by Food Administration officials this afternoon from figures compiled here.

Drastic action probably will be taken by the government unless dealers attempt to cut the heavy overhead charges responsible for increased prices, it was stated.

NEWTON-WATERTOWN GAS RATE GOES UP

The Gas Commission today authorized the Newton and Watertown Gas Light Company to increase the price of gas to 95 cents per 1000 cubic feet. The former rate was 85 cents. The increase is allowed for the duration of the war. The commission also authorized the Fall River Electric Light Company to issue $700,000 of stock to cancel short-time notes.

RUSSIAN PROVINCES "DESIRE" GERMAN RULE

Zurich, May 25.—Germany has sent a communication to Russia declaring that the peoples of Livonia, Esthonia and Oesel desire incorporation with Germany and a severance from Russia according to word received here from a German source today. Germany is to retain full control of the Russo-Polish railways it was said.

LEGAL TEST ON SUNDAY BASEBALL

O'Meara to Act, But Big Game for Red Cross Will Be Played Tomorrow

Big league baseball in Boston in Sunday will get its first legal test tomorrow.

The Red Sox and the White Sox play a regular championship game at Fenway Park for the benefit of the Red Cross. Admission will be charged, and the game will count in the American League race.

A license to play the game has been secured from the Public Safety Committee, through the efforts of Governor McCall, Mayor Peters and the Red Cross officials.

COURT MUST DECIDE.

The game, however, in the opinion of Police Commissioner OMeara, is contrary to Massachusetts law. The participants and the promoters will be summoned to court. Warrants will be asked for them on Monday.

The game will be played, however, and the spectators will not be molested by the police.

Commissioner O'Meara has instructed his officers to appear at the game, get the names of players and promoters, and let it go at that. In the opinion of the commissioner, it is doubtful whether or not a special license for a ball game can be issued by State or city officials.

It is to settle this point that he has moved.

"It is to be understood by officers

DOUBLE IT!

The Red Cross asks for a hundred million dollars.

The people of the United States should double that amount and make their contribution two hundred million dollars.

The most inspiring thing that President Wilson has said, of the many inspiring sentiments of his speeches, is his remark in his Red Cross speech last Saturday night at the Metropolitan Opera House: "WHY LIMIT OUR ARMY TO 5,000,000 MEN?"

President Wilson was splendidly right.

The way to win this war quickly and completely is for the United States to do double the amount that is expected of her.

If five million men are required to win the war, let us have an army of ten million men and win the war overwhelmingly and immediately.

Every Liberty Loan should be doubly oversubscribed.

Every demand for funds for the Red Cross should be doubly contributed.

Every man, woman and child in the United States knows the great work that the Red Cross is doing and the necessity for this work being maintained and extended.

As the Red Cross slogan says:

"Give what you think you can and then double it."

And if every citizen gives what he thinks he can and then doubles it the one hundred millions asked for by the Red Cross will be two hundred millions, and the splendid work which the Red Cross is doing can be made doubly extensive and doubly effective.

In fact, if every demand made upon the citizens of the United States by our government, by our armies, and by our auxiliary aid societies is contributed two-fold, the war will be overwhelmingly won and our boys will be back home in safety and with glory within a year.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

COL. ROOSEVELT FILES REPLY TO BURLESON

Washington, May 25.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt this afternoon responded to Postmaster-General Burleson's attack upon him. Through Senator Poindexter of Washington he placed in the congressional record a lengthy statement in which he charged the administration with misusing its powers granted by Congress. He also assailed the Hearst newspapers, William Randolph Hearst and Arthur Brisbane.

After attacking the Hearst newspapers and charging that Postmaster-General Burleson has used favoritism in the suppression of newspapers, Colonel Roosevelt closed with the following paragraph:

"Congress has with lavish generosity granted all the administration has demanded to carry on the war. It has also granted the administration extraordinary power of a kind never hitherto granted any administration to deal with the internal foes of the

KILL TAX BILLS THAT AIMED AT RICH

The State Senate today killed a couple of tax bills that would have yielded the State at least $2,500,000.

Both bills were killed by the combined strength of the corporation and State Street lobbies, it is charged.

The first bill was to impose an income tax on business corporations. Senator Nichols of Boston, who has presided over the big taxation "killings" of the year in the Senate, moved that it be referred to the next Legislature. The motion was carried 18 to 13.

The other bill provided an increase of ten per cent. in the income tax. Senator Smith of Lincoln, who is identified with one of the biggest copper corporations in the country, moved that it be referred to the next Legislature. The motion was carried, nineteen to fifteen.

This year's State tax will be the highest in history. It will reach $15,000,000. Last year it was $11,000,000. Each one of the bills defeated today would have raised $1,250,000, most of it from "the pockets of the rich."

DAMAGED U-BOAT ENTERS SPANISH PORT

Madrid, May 25.—The German submarine U-53 has entered the port of Santander, Spain, it was learned here today. The U-boat was in a damaged condition.

Several members of the U-boat crew were taken prisoners and have been landed at a British port, the Chronicle's dispatch said.

By International News Service.

Washington, May 25.—Fifty-three American soldiers were lost on the Moldavia, the British troopship sunk by a German submarine, the War Department announced this afternoon. All were members of Company B, 58th Infantry, Fourth Division. Among them were Fred D. Canwell of Fall River and James G. McCarthy of Tyler street, Boston.

It was pointed out that none of those listed as missing might have been saved, but it was believed that the number would be very small.

The list of missing follows:

BERNSTORFF AND JOHN DEVOY NAMED BY ENGLAND IN IRISH PLOT

OFFICIAL EVIDENCE OF REVOLT

Germany, Ready to Land Munitions, Sought U-Boat and Air Base on Irish Coast

started reorganizing an Irish rebellion shortly after the Dublin uprising two years ago.

"Thus it is seen that negotiations between the Sinn Feiners and Germany were virtually continuous for three and a half years," says the statement.

"At first, the second rebellion was planned for last year, but the plan broke down as Germany was unable to send troops.

PLAN FOR UPRISING.

"The plan for this year was to bring about an uprising in conjunction with the German offensive on the western front, and it was maturing. — A shipment of arms from Germany to Ireland was imminent. Under the circumstances there was no other course open to the government if useless bloodshed was to be avoided and our duty to our allies to be fulfilled than to strike at the chore and abettors in this intrigue.

"In June, 1916, a message went from Berlin to Washington referring to 'A 36' saying that Germany was ready to give further help to Ireland if the Irish would only say what sort was required. On the sixteenth, Bernstorff sent a message concerning the uprising stating that a defence fund of £1,000 had been formed for Sir Roger Casement.

"Later Bernstorff sent a message stating that the reorganization of the Irish rebels was progressing and that the lack of money had been remedied by him.

SENT DETAILS TO BERLIN.

"Bernstorff sent a communication to Berlin enclosing memorandum from the 'Irish revolution director, resident in America,' relating to details about a fresh uprising.

"The rising, said the American director, 'is contingent upon the sending from Germany of sufficient military forces to cover a landing, and for Germany to fix the time.'

"As an inducement the Germans were told of the advantages for submarine and Zeppelin bases on the West Irish Coast and October was suggested as the best time for the revolt.

Bernstorff sent a warning not to allow a certain Captain Boohm to write from Rotterdam to Irish-Americans for fear he would address the wrong persons.

Bernstorff surreptitiously attached a note to a message which passed the American embassy in Berlin to Zimmermann (then the German foreign secretary) informed Bernstorff that it was proposed to land quantities of munitions (in Ireland) but that it was impossible at present to send men. Bernstorff replied that the committee (evidently the revolutionary committee in America) refused to act unless Germany sent troops.

COMMUNICATION BLOCKED.

America's entrance into the war, added the official statement, temporarily broke up communication between the Irish in Ireland and their sympathizers in the United States, but there is no reason to believe that the messenger service devised by Devoy between Ireland and America was affected.

In support of the charges the official statement cited the following extracts from speeches of Professor De Valera, one of the Sinn Fein leaders recently arrested:

"Already there has been too much bloodshed without success. We cannot hope for success in the future except through a German invasion of England and the landing of troops and munitions in Ireland.

In January of this year Professor De Valera said:

"As long as Germany is the enemy of England and England is the enemy of Ireland, Ireland will be the friend of Germany."

For a long time, went on the official statement, it was difficult to secure accurate information. In April it was ascertained that the time was ripe for the landing of arms in Ireland.

The Germans were awaiting information from Ireland as to the date and place. The British were able to warn the Irish commander of the probable landing.

GERMAN AGENT ARRESTED.

A German agent was landed from a German submarine on April 12 and was arrested.

The arrest depended largely upon the landing of munitions from a submarine.

According to documents found on the person of De Valera, he had worked out the details of a constitution for a Irish army. He had hoped to muster half a million trained men.

German munitions had actually been shipped from Cuxhaven at the beginning of May. For some time the Germans had been busy off the west Irish coast on other errands than the destruction of allied shipping.

"The revolutionary movement in Ireland culminating in the arrest of a considerable number of persons last week, consisted of two closely related series of activities," said the official report.

"1—Attempts by Germany to foment rebellion in Ireland.

"2—Preparations made in Ireland to carry these principles into action."

The events relating to the first were detailed, but those relating to the second were not, because such an action would have disclosed the names of the persons who stood by the government.

The Rev. Father Nicholson fulfilled Roger Casement's wish that the American priest corrupt Irish prisoners in Germany, it was declared. He helped to conspire for the Easter rebellion. Bernstorff fixing the date, it was said.

Von Jagow (former German foreign secretary) arranged to land arms at Tralee Bay.

Bernstorff asked for a simultaneous air raid over England and a naval attack against the English coast.

The German plotter hoped to blockade Irish ports and establish submarine bases in Ireland.

Attacks were actually made by the Germans between April 22 and April 26, in 1916, but the other German help miscarried.

nation, and this power can be, and has been, misused to reward the administration's personal or political supporters and punish the administration's personal or political opponents.

"Congress, through such bodies as the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, has exercised the power of investigation and supervision to correct executive inefficiency, executive delay and executive abuse of power, and has done this in such fashion as to speed up and render immensely more efficient our part in the war.

"Congress should vigilantly exercise its right of supervision as regards the use of all the great powers it has granted the administration over the properties and activities of the citizens of the United States."

In opening his statement, Colonel Roosevelt said:

"I deal with Mr. Burleson and his action purely because he is a representative of President Wilson exactly as is Secretary Baker, exactly as is Mr. Creel. President Wilson is responsible for everything Postmaster General Burleson and Secretary Baker and Mr. Creel do or leave undone."

Drive Broken, U. S. in Time for Big Battle, Says Tardieu

By International News Service.

Paris, May 25.—The German offensive has been broken, declared Andre Tardieu, famous French statesman, in an interview printed today. He added:

"The allies now have assurances that Americans will arrive in time for this decisive battle. The capital problems—transportation and the disposition of the American troops—have now been settled. The transporting of American troops is now going on at a much greater rate than at the beginning of the year. The transportation of troops from America to France is notably in excess of the movements of German troops from the Russian to the western front.

"All French needs in war materials are now covered until the end of this year."

M. Tardieu is French high commissioner to the United States. He has just arrived in France from the United States.

MEXICO IS AT ODDS WITH CUBA

By EDWARD F. O'BRIEN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Havana, May 25.—Diplomatic relations between Cuba and Mexico have not been severed although they are somewhat strained, according to information secured here today. A crisis is unlikely so far as Cuba is concerned, it was said.

Washington, May 24.—Officials of the United States government and diplomats generally are admittedly very much puzzled over the situation between Mexico and Cuba. Mexico City advices quoting officials of the Carranza government as saying that, inasmuch as Cuba had entered the war, there was no longer any benefit in Mexico through a continuation of diplomatic relations, were declared to be utterly meaningless.

Meanwhile, the Cuban legation and the Mexico embassy were endeavoring to get in touch with their home governments to ascertain the facts.

Beyond a knowledge that the Mexican minister at Havana had been recalled to Mexico City the State Department was without news. His recall might mean any one of half a dozen things, officials said.

ITALIANS BEATEN BACK 6 TIMES, SAYS VIENNA

Amsterdam, May 25.—"The Italians three times attacked our lines in the sectors of Zugnatorta and the Etsch valley," the Austrian War Office announces, said a dispatch from Vienna today. "The first two attacks were broken up with sanguinary losses. The third time the attackers got close to our positions before they were repelled. The enemy was repulsed three times in attacks at Monte Asolone."

Rome, May 25.—"Five more hostile airplanes have been brought down," the Italian War Office announces. "Enemy aerodromes at Feltre and Mottadil Wenzo were successfully bombed. Our patrols in the sector of Costa Di Solo penetrated the enemy's lines and destroyed the garrison. Attempts by the enemy to advance were repulsed everywhere."

ALLIES CAPTURE PRISONERS AND GUNS

Paris, May 25.—French troops penetrated the German line west of Noyon (Picardy battle front) capturing prisoners, the War Office announced today. German raids south of Hangard wood (opposite Amiens) and in the Vosges Mountains were repulsed.

By International News Service.

London, May 25.—British forces successfully raided German positions in the sector of Hamel and north of Albert during the night, capturing forty prisoners and two machine guns, the British War Office announced today. North of Lens a few more German prisoners were taken.

The Germans carried out a heavy bombardment with gas shells east of Bethune. In the Strazzele zone German artillery increased its activity. The text of the official report follows:

"During the night we raided enemy trenches in the neighborhood of Hamel and north of Albert capturing over forty prisoners and two machine guns. We carried out successful raids north of Lens resulting in the capture of a few prisoners. There was hostile artillery firing last night and also gas shelling east of Bethune. The enemy artillery showed increased activity in the Strazzele district."

The police say that Quimby found two checks drawn on the Winchester Trust Company, which were dropped in Grace Episcopal Church by George L. Donovan. Quimby is alleged to have forged Donovan's signature and then cashed the checks. The case was continued to June 3.

U. S. TROOPS SOON IN LINE WITH ITALIANS

New York, May 25. — American troops will soon be on the Italian battle front lending their aid to the gallant troops who have entered upon their fourth year of war against the central powers.

Secretary of War Baker, in his address at the Metropolitan Opera House here, made this assertion. He said:

"The time undoubtedly is not far distant when American soldiers will take places with British and French soldiers on the Italian front, this making of the army on the Italian front a composite unit, evidencing the community of feeling and unity of effort which is characterizing the activities of the great civilized allied powers on the front in France."

COLE ADMITS DRYDOCK BONUS SCHEME

Waterways Chairman Tells of Plan to Reimburse Contractors Already Behind Time

That the Waterways Commission is involved in a scheme to pay a bonus to Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins if they complete the Boston drydock before the war is over was the admission forced from the unwilling lips of Chairman John N. Cole at a hearing before the Ways and Means Committee of the Legislature.

The contract requires that the drydock be completed by August 1. The Boston Central Labor Union claims that the drydock is at least eleven months behind. Chairman Cole today admitted that "there isn't a Chinaman's chance of completing the dock on time."

It is reported that Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins have made overtures to members of the Governor's Council to grant them a bonus of $300,000.

Cole also admitted that the commission may sell or lease the drydock to the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation. A bill which he presented to the committee would exempt the corporation from taxation.

Attorney George A. Flynn of the City of Boston law department denounced the scheme as "indefensible," and asserted that "the principle is odious."

Cole left the room asserting, "If you want Mayor Peters to come out in favor of this bill, I'll see that he does."

Cole said that the construction of the drydock, from its inception, was "a damnable absurdity, because the City of Boston never needed it any more than it needs a sore foot."

Attorney Flynn asserted that the Federal government or any private firm that may be angling for the dock has ample authority to pay the contractors all the bonuses they want to pay.

REVERE POLICE HEARING ENDED

The hearing on charges of profanity and failure to properly patrol his beat against Patrolman Thomas W. Dowd by Chief John J. Dyer of the Revere police was concluded today. Mayor Alfred S. Hall announced at its conclusion that he would make his decision next week. Dowd was suspended from the police force a month ago by Chief Dyer and is seeking reinstatement.

James O'Brien, president of the Bay State Street Railway Carmen's Union, and Joseph Fortesmith, Q. C., have declared the charges were due to politics.

"Patrolman Dowd is a Democrat and a member of the City Committee of Revere, and for that one thing they have against him," he said. "I investigated the charges in order to find out if Dowd was riding around on the street cars instead of patrolling his beat. The conductors tell me that he has seldom ridden on the cars."

Chief Dyer charged that Dowd had not only failed to properly patrol his beat, but that he had used insulting and profane language to a superior officer.

in command," he says in instructions to the superintendent of police, "that this case is to be treated in the same manner as other supposed violations of the Sunday law are dealt with from time to time, with the main purpose of securing a court decision."

He goes on to state that if the court refuses to issue warrants for the participants, or acquits them, that hereafter such games shall be considered lawful, and treated by the police as regular week day games.

Chief John H. Prunkett of the State police, who approved the issuance of the license for the game, declared that the district attorney assured him he had the legal right to sanction the permit. With the church collecting funds and giving time from Sunday services to the cause of the Greatest Mother of All, he feels that a ball game which will net thousands of dollars will not in any sense violate the proper observance of the Sabbath.

Officials at Fenway Park, though they had not been informed of the move of the police commissioner, stated that the game would be played according to program.

GAME WILL BE PLAYED.

"We have the license," said Secretary Carrigan, "and we entire affair is now in the hands of the Red Cross. They arranged for the game and will get every penny taken in."

Following is the statement given out by Commissioner Hinkett:

"The license for such entertainment was granted by the Mayor of Boston. He having granted the license, he came up to me for approval as a Sunday entertainment. I was somewhat in doubt as to the legality of my action in the premises but the Attorney General has informed me that I had the legal power to approve.

"Under the circumstances, I practically veto the action of the Mayor and prevent the receiving of a large sum of money for the Red Cross. Every dollar of the receipts will go to the credit of the Red Cross fund, and as it was dependent upon my approval alone and the patriotic urgency of the case was such, I departed from the general principle laid down as regards Sunday entertainment.

WORK OF MERCY.

"While I believe very strongly in the sanctity of the Sabbath, I did not think it was justified in disposing of this particular game where all receipts are to be contributed to this cause. Our churches are devoting a portion of their time at the Sunday services to appeals for the Red Cross, and this is an opportunity to secure from a twenty-five to fifty thousand dollars for this sacred cause.

"I felt that this opportunity should be taken advantage of, even though as a rule, I would not. I would approve baseball as an entertainment conducted with a proper observance of the Lord's Day."

WAR CROSSES TO U. S. MEN DEAD IN FLIGHT

Barneby and Colbert, Victims of Accident, Decorated for Valor on French Front

By International News Service.

Washington, May 25.—The death of two decorated American aviators as the result of an accidental fall and the shooting down of two German airplanes were reported in General Pershing's communique made public by the War Department today.

The communique follows:

"Section A — There are no new developments to report. It is established that our aviators shot down two hostile machines on May 21.

"Section B—On Wednesday afternoon First Lieutenant Walter V. Barneby, Signal Corps, of Sumner, Wash., and Second Lieutenant Kenneth P. Colbert, U. S. Marines, of Orange, N. J., were fatally injured by the accidental fall of an airplane in which they were acting respectively as pilot and observer. Both officers died during the night. In the evening both were decorated with the Croix de Guerre with the Palm for excellent, faithful and courageous work in numerous former flights. Their valor in operating in Belsheprey on April 26, under heavy fire and under adverse weather conditions was especially mentioned."

American Aviators Harass Germans on the Front at Toul

With the American Army in France, May 25.—The shooting down of a German plane, after he had been attacked by four machines, by Lieutenant Edward Buford, Jr., of Nashville, Tenn., was officially confirmed this afternoon. Lieutenant Buford was flying over the enemy lines near St. Mihiel Wednesday when he ran into the quarters of German fliers. He fired for one of them. The German maneuvered and attempted to get Buford in between the other German machines. The American eluded the Germans and swung homewards. He was confronted by a fifth and he shot him down just as two others came up. Buford's gun jammed as he turned on the two others. He dived beneath both of them and escaped, returning to his base.

It is now permitted to publish for the first time that one of our pursuit squadrons is operating behind the Toul front and their daily patrolling has been making life miserable for the Huns for several weeks. The best tribute paid to their work was by a sausage balloonist.

"It is seldom that any Boche has ventured so far over our lines since these fighters arrived," he said. The group has more than four victories for every one achieved by the Boche. Their only losses so far are Lufbery, Chinn and Hall. Two of the American patrollers were unable to discover a single German machine.

The entire group is now in the pursuit squadron were trained in America. They are all keen fliers.

GRACE LUSK SENT '6,023 BEAR HUGS' TO DOCTOR IN ONE LOVE LETTER

ACCUSED WOMAN COMPLETES STORY AFTER AN HOUR OF CROSS EXAMINATION

By International News Service

Waukesha, Wis., May 25.—Grace Lusk completed her testimony in her trial for the murder of Mrs. Mary Newman Roberts at 10:10 o'clock and quit the stand.

Miss Lusk had been on the stand a little over an hour today under cross-examination by Prosecuter Corrigan, who drew from her that she didn't believe she intended to kill Dr. David Roberts when she threatened him with a gun if he did not tell his wife of the relations between them.

She also said that she told Mrs. Roberts that if she and Mrs. Roberts could have talked things over the situation would be cleared up.

Melting phrases of endearing love ran through letters written to Dr. Roberts by Miss Lusk. One of the letters enclosed "Six thousand and twenty-three bear hugs" for the doctor.

The text of letters, as read into the trial records, is here given:

The first was from Miss Lusk, who was in Waukesha, to Dr. Roberts in Chicago. It was dated Feb. 24, 1917, and follows:

"Dearest: I wish I were with you in that nice old Chicago town. Oh, just wouldn't I make you sit up and take notice. I certainly will keep you busy when we do have a reunion, won't I? I hope you have good luck, dear. I want you always to be happy and successful.

"I love you just heaps and heaps and then some, and I want to tell you so in every way possible—perhaps I can soon—anyway, here's hoping. Enclosed nd 6,023 bear hugs. As always, your LIT' FRIEND."

"SO LONESOME FOR YOU."

Another from Miss Lusk in Chicago to Dr. Roberts in Waukesha, dated April 16, 1917, read:

"Dearest: I am so—so—so lonesome you. Isn't there a man in this town when you're out here?" It was so sweet and generous of you, darling, to send me down here. You've done me heaps of things and make me love you, but this I do appreciate more than almost anything, because I know that in your heart you hated to see me go.

"I'm just thinking of you every second and trying to imagine you are here with your dear arms about me and your lips on mine—oh, my darling, I love you so and love you. Your GRACE."

"THOUGHT TELEPATHY."

Another from Miss Lusk at Waukesha to Dr. Roberts, who was at home, dated May 17, 1917, in part follows:

"My Dearest: I never wanted so much to see you. I felt that you needed me. I thought I would try 'thought telepathy' on something and make you drive past. I want to see you tomorrow. If I can't see you in the evening I want to see you in the afternoon. Can't I take the car out to Springdale—or some place and see you? I must see you, that's all. Let me tell you one thing; you let her scare you to death.

"Why don't you come out frankly and say that you care for me—and that she can go her way and you will go yours. The moment you would say that she would back water. If that is what you want. But why do you let her have your way? This moment she sees she can't have you and scare you, that moment the fuss will be over. Lovingly, GRACE."

"P. S.—Destroy this immediately."

MISS LUSK TO THIS WAFE.

A letter written by Miss Lusk to Mrs. Roberts, but intercepted by the doctor before its delivery, was dated Waukesha, June 1. It follows in full:

"My Dear Mrs. Roberts: I have just come home from spending the evening with your husband. He has told me the full details of your Chicago trip, etc. We plan to be together tomorrow in the city. I am going to ask him then to decide finally between us. He has told me that it was I who had all his affections.

"I have begged him to go to you and tell you the situation frankly, for I felt you were a big enough woman to desire his happiness.

"If he does not care enough for me to do that it is I who have been made the plaything—then I am afraid I shall call him to account. Wouldn't it have been much simpler if instead of intimidating your husband you had faced matters frankly and sincerely and given him his freedom when you lost confidence and all?

"It is he who has been made not truthful, and I who have lost my one and only reputation that you might keep your 'throne.' It really isn't quite fair, is it?"

HEREIN TO CHICAGO TRIP.

Another letter from Miss Lusk; reads substantially as follows

"It is afternoon, dear, and I can't seem to find any polite writing paper or polite envelopes to fit the writing paper. But perhaps you'll be so dizzy with joy to receive this that you won't notice, it's up to you to say: 'Oh, certainly.'

"Uh, just wouldn't I make you sit up and take notice if I were there with you. There has been an intermission. I have to stop and drill some of my young hopefuls for most two hours and it is 6 o'clock.

"I wish I was at the Hotel Sherman powdering my nose and getting ready to go over to the Boston Opera House for some of that filet mignon. Isn't that the nice steak? As always,

"YOUR LITTLE FRIEND."

PLANS CHICAGO TRIP.

Another from Miss Lusk:

"January 23, 1917.—Dear—There are two or three things I think are better not said over the phone. If I can some down I will be on North-western, leave Milwaukee at 6, arrive in Chicago 8.10. Be there to meet me if you can. If you can't be there at 8.10, I'll wait in ladies' waiting room or near there for you.

"Would it not be well for you, when you go into Chicago in the morning, to phone the Sherman and have that room 2002 or a similar high one reserved? And you could take your bag there before you come to meet me in the evening. Hadn't you better have your mail sent to the Sherman? By the way, if anything should happen that I could not come, I will have Miss R. telegraph to Sherman or Morrison. When you phone me in the morning tell me that which hotel to telegraph to. Also don't you think it might be best not to use names of M—— there?

"Here's hoping.

"P. S.—Be sure to tell me how and where you will register, so that if I should miss you at station I'd know where to phone, or where to go; when you phone me tomorrow better say, 'Mr. friend, Mrs. ——, will be at, I think the less over the phone the better."

DOCTOR TO "LITTLE ONE."

This is from the doctor to Miss Lusk:

"From Waterloo, Tuesday eve.

"My Dear Grace—I presume you got word from me not to write. Otherwise you would have had a nice little letter here by this time. You are always so thoughtful about it. I just like you for it ever and ever so much. Anyway, I am going to write you, whether I hear from you or not, so you will know I am thinking of you.

"So sorry you didn't want to see me last Sunday. You would have felt repaid for your efforts, for I was surely anxious to see you all over again.

"When I passed through Chicago, transferred over to the Twelfth street station, where our tracks are still fresh on the saddle of the map. You see, my intuition was pretty right about not seeing you on my way from home.

"It's after midnight and must stop, but would like to write a lot more and say what I would like to say and say it just as I feel. It would be some saying and feeling. A feeling that cannot be described by the few words that poor old Dan can get together. Some people call it 'boo,' but how mild for a big, strong, healthy, vigorous, ambitious fellow to say 'boo' when he feels more noisy than a locomotive.

"Good night, little one. Will call you soon. Wish it were right now, now, now——"

Dr. Roberts Played A Game, But I Loved, Says Grace Lusk

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Waukesha, Wis., May 25.—"I spoke frankly to Dr. Roberts and I had a different point of view. I loved him, but with him it was a game. I had lost my reputation and with it my usefulness."

In clear, level tones Grace Lusk told this to the jurors in the Waukesha courthouse, where she is on trial for the killing of Mrs. Roberts.

Not twenty feet away sat Dr. Roberts, the man for whom she threw away all the fruits of a hard, studious girlhood and the secure and honorable position that it had taken twenty years of her life to win.

He is not a heroic-looking figure, a little fussy-looking man, with gray hair and black eyes. But if he had the beauty of Apollo Belvidere and the genius of Michael Angelo combined, he would not be worth a sentence, written by any woman.

I was glad to say that epitaph, but it was Grace Lusk's, not Doctor Roberts.'

A REAL LIKEABLE WOMAN.

Such a nice wholesome looking woman, the type one takes to almost automatically. The whole case is well-nigh unbelievable.

Some of her letters, to different women friends, were read in court and they bubbled over with humor and humanity. She writes to Miss Fry of her weariness in correcting school papers. After three she wants to rest; after twenty she feels herself no longer a member of a civilized community.

She is overjoyed at the prospects of a holiday and no wonder, since she has been teaching and studying since she was six.

"There was talk of a wardrobe trunk, which she hoped to get at a bargain, and she asked a friend to whom she is writing to look at one, if she had time. That had been advertised in Chicago. And always, exact in detail, Miss Lusk encloses the illustration of the trunk she has in mind.

MAKING ENDS MEET.

She has all the problems of the average woman bread-winner, the juggling required to spread the income thin enough to cover the ever-increasing cost of living.

She had apparently scores of friends, women, with whom she corresponded with regularity and they read and discussed books and swapped them about among themselves and belonged to book clubs and libraries. Acute question of books came up and she answerd: "Wherever I go, books follow me."

I am putting down all of these apparently irrelevant details, because they show what sort of a girl Grace Lusk was.

Just such a girl as one finds in hundreds of carefully sheltered American homes, a girl growing up to enjoy the best there is in life, literature, art and travel and to pick and choose among these with a taste of a connoisseur.

WAS INFLUENCE FOR GOOD.

At least a dozen girls here in Waukesha who were pupils of hers have said to me with feeling, "I owe her so much, she taught me all I know of books and pictures."

And there stands the woman who has been such an influence for good in the community fighting for her life, for taking the life of another woman.

Slowly and with every indication of the strain, she told the story of her infatuation for Dr. Roberts. It is such a calamity as might overtake any girl who had lived a sheltered life, and then waked up, rather late in life, to discover there are more vital things in the world than are to be found in the pages of books.

It is too bad that so soon as she found herself taking an interest in the man, Roberts, with his pica of "no sympathy at home," that she did not run away from his influence.

HER FATAL MISTAKE.

That is the biggest and bravest thing a girl can do when she finds herself becoming interested in a married man. Not stop to argue about it, but to get away to new surroundings and new people if it is humanly possible, and if it is not to decline absolutely to see him.

The sort of madness is not improved by argument for or against.

"I lost my reputation and with it my usefulness." Miss Lusk said in court. Her life up to a year ago had been an admirable one, full of helpfulness and industry.

The school girls to whom she opened the book of knowledge speak of her in the far-away tones we speak of the dead. She has so many fine qualities if she had only remembered cowardice among them and had not stopped to argue, but just run away.

LEAVE FOR U. S. MEN SAVE ON DRIVE FRONTS

With the American Armies in France, May 25.—Leaves were again being granted today to American troops of the expeditionary forces serving elsewhere than in the north-ern battle zone of the Somme and in Flanders, where conditions make it inadvisable to grant leaves at present, owing to the expected great German offensive. When other American organizations join the allied forces on those fronts, leaves of course will be automatically discontinued on receipt of orders to move.

RED CROSS FUND DRIVE GAINS RAPIDLY

Several Cities and Towns Already Over the Top; Others Driving Ahead

tion contributing $2,556,600; Greater New York, $22,600,324; southern division, $3,500,000; Lake division, $7,690,500; central division, $10,605,000, of which Chicago contributed approximately $2,000,000; Gulf division, $2,000,000; southwestern division, $10,625,000, with St. Louis subscribing $1,787,000; Mountain division, $1,800,000; northwestern division, $2,500,000; Pacific division, $4,340,000; insular and foreign division, $900,000.

The following Massachusetts cities and towns were announced to have reached their quota: Arlington, Belmont, Braintree, Brookline, Cambridge, Canton, Chelsea, Milton, Needham, Newton, Norwood, Walpole, Watertown, Wayland, Wellesley, Weston, Westwood, Winchester and Woburn.

The Boston suburban district announced that it was over its quota, contributions totalling $975,000, with many towns and cities still to be heard from.

FORE RIVER CONTRIBUTION.

A contribution of $25,000 credited yesterday to the employes of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, should have been credited to the corporation itself, General Manager B. W. Wakman of the Rore River and Squantum plants of the company announced. The contributions made by the men have not yet been announced, but will swell the fund greatly.

Competition to name the four 2,500-ton wooden ships still continues here. Mayor Peters, chairman, vice-president of F. W. Woolworth Company, offered $1,000 for the privilege of naming one of the vessels, the Roy H. Beattie, in honor of his boyhood chum, now assistant manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

It is doubtful whether he will obtain his desire, however, for Mayor Peters has suffered $6,000 for the privilege of naming one of the boats after his city. The executives of other cities are reported to be active along similar lines, and a bid is expected from the Mayor of Newburyport.

RALLY ON THE COMMON.

"Give 50 cents to bind a soldier's wound" is the slogan of the rally on Boston Common. Front line trench packets, containing, tampons, gauze and pads for first aid to trench fighters, were offered at 50 cents each, the cost of the materials, and each purchaser was assured that his packet would be hurried to the dugouts abroad.

Dr. Richard Wadsworth gave a practical demonstration of how soldiers hurt in the trenches use the packets, a man in uniform playing the part of a wounded trench fighter, while Dr. Wadsworth ripped open packets and applied the bandages to imaginary wounds.

To show how Red Cross material is packed when a hurry call comes for supplies, a box building, packing and shipping competition was held. Two expert box builders constructed on the platform two large packing cases which were rapidly and skilfully filled with trench packets by four young women. Inside of a few minutes the cases were laden aboard a big motor truck, headed for France.

William E. Chamberlain, in charge of the Common feature, had his big money eating vacuum cleaner working, and squads of pretty girls patrolled the malls and the paths collecting from passersby. "Shellproof" Mack and Sailor Ryan spoke.

BIG GAME TOMORROW.

Tickets went on sale at the campaign headquarters, No. 125 Milk street, and at Liberty Cottage on the Common today for the big baseball game at Fenway Park tomorrow between the Red Sox and the White Sox. Tickets for the game will also be on sale on the Common tomorrow morning.

Mr. Wesley's quota of $20,000 was exceeded at midnight Friday, when $24,000 in subscriptions were received, from 2800 persons.

The Walter M. Lowney Company went over the top today with 100 per cent. subscription from all its employes.

So far the fund is over $16,000, with more to be collected. The company itself has already contributed $1650.

PROSECUTION OF FISH COMPANY DEMANDED

Representative Allen Calls for Criminal Action by Attorney-General

Declaring that the big fish interests which control the port of Boston are guilty either of legalized profiteering or of ruthless violation of the anti-monopoly laws, Representative J. Weston Allen of Newton today called upon Attorney-General Attwill to institute a criminal investigation.

The demand for investigation and prosecution was made by Mr. Allen as a member of the Fish Investigation Committee which today submitted its report to the Legislature.

The majority of the committee said that while there is evidence tending to show the existence of a monopoly, unfair competition, stock jobbing and profiteering at the Boston Fish Pier, such evidence is not by conclusive as to warrant this committee recommending a prosecution at the present time under the statutes now in force in this Commonwealth."

SCOFFS AT EXCUSES.

The majority of the committee also said that an investigation might increase the cost of fish, and that it might drive the industry to other ports.

Representative Allen scoffs at the excuses made by the majority of the committee.

After reviewing the formation of the alleged fish monopoly and reciting how one company alone cleaned up a profit of over $2,000,000 in one transaction, Representative Allen declared:

"They have capitalized the food exigencies of the nation. If it is within the pale of the law, it is legalized profiteering.

"It may be that acts which, in times of peace do not come within the purview of the courts, in time of war are clearly violations when they retard the efforts of the government to increase supply of available food.

Especially, Mr. Allen asked that the Attorney-General be given a copy of the evidence taken by this committee, and be requested to proceed against the Bay State Fishing Company of Maine, as in his opinion, the facts warrant a prosecution. He also recommended that Mr. Attwill be requested to determine whether the Boston Fish Market Corporation has allowed a trust to flourish on Commonwealth Pier.

Representative Allen said in his report to the Legislature:

TIME FOR ACTION.

"I am not able to agree with that portion of the report which holds that there is not sufficient evidence of illegal acts in the records before the committee to justify submitting the case to the attorney-general, nor do I think that the fact that we are at war is a reason for hesitation in failing to take whatever steps may be taken to test the issue whether the lease from the Commonwealth to the Boston Fish Market Corporation, under the conduct of the business of the exchange, has been lawfully operated.

He points out that it was more than a year ago that George W. Anderson, then United States attorney, determined that the evidence in his possession warranted action by the government, and that now in Mr. Allen's opinion, the information obtained by the investigating committee is much more complete than that upon which Mr. Anderson made his decision.

EXPLANATION NECESSARY.

Mr. Allen declared that the circumstances surrounding the organization of the Bay State Fishing Company and the methods pursued in its business demand serious consideration by the Legislature, and should be explained, he says:

"As New York promoter, F. M. Dyer, planned and executed the coup by which the assets of the old Bay State Fishing Company fell to him. To be immediately disposed of to a new company. I believe that the issue of the Massachusetts Woman's Suffrage Association is wholly local and patriotic in this time of the country's trial. The ringing resolution passed on Friday gave ample proof of this fact.

"The first obligation of our organization, as well as that of all other associations, is to support the government's war policy. At the same time we are engaged in the campaign for the immediate enfranchisement of the women of the country.

"To these ends I hereby pledge my service and the utmost of my ability in the event of my election.

HAMPTON RIVER BRIDGE BURNS; LOSS $65,000

Hampton Beach, N. H., May 25.—The reconstructed section of the old Mile Bridge, spanning the Hampton River, which was carried away by ice floes last Winter, was destroyed by fire today.

The blaze, which was of unknown origin, burned about 400 feet of the bridge, and caused damage estimated at $65,000.

Two derricks, a stationary engine, and other property of Cashman Brothers, Newburyport, which were on the structure, were either burned or dropped into the bed of water when the burning timbers gave way.

Walter E. Connor, a member of the Salisbury Beach Coast Guard, was seriously injured when the structure collapsed. He fell into the water, but managed to seize a twisted piece of pipe attached to the bridge, to which he clung until rescued.

REFUSE TO QUIT AS SUFFRAGE CANDIDATES

Mrs. FitzGerald and Mrs. Pinkham Put Contest Up to Convention

By ELIZABETH ELLAM.

Mrs. Susan W. FitzGerald and Mrs. Wenona Osborne Pinkham, two of the candidates for the office of first vice-president of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association, declined today, at the opening of the second-day session of the annual convention of the association, to withdraw their candidacies in favor of Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird.

Their attitude was made public to the convention in a statement signed by both.

They had been advised last night by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, national president, to withdraw for the good of the association.

But, after all night consideration of the situation they declined. They decided to go before the convention and let the delegates fight it out at the polls. Their signed statement to the convention reads as follows:

CONVENTION MUST DECIDE.

"After careful consideration of the suggestions made late yesterday that we should both withdraw from the contest for first vice-president in favor of Mrs. Bird, or that, if a suitable other candidate could be found, all three candidates should withdraw in her favor, we have decided that, in justice to the association, we have to remain in the field and to allow the convention to decide the matter at the polls.

"Should we withdraw at this time it would be equivalent to our electing the vice-president, a responsibility given by our constitution to the convention itself.

"Under all these present conditions withdraw now at the last moment there would be no time to consider carefully and select a candidate and, again it would amount to our making ourselves simply the decision out of the hands of the association.

"Since the association make its own choice. Whoever it elects, we stand loyally by the association which has stood loyally by us by publicly expressing its confidence in our loyalty to our country through the resolution passed by the convention yesterday.

About 250 delegates were present when voting in the annual election began.

When the convention opened at 10:30 an hour's animated debate took place, following which it was decided to allow the alternates to sit with the delegates.

MRS. BIRD'S STATEMENT.

The following statement by Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, candidate for first vice-president, was read:

"I would not have allowed my name to be used if I had not been assured that my withdrawal would not in any way would unite the association preparatory to its great work of the coming year. I believe that the Massachusetts Woman's Suffrage Association is wholly local and patriotic in this time of the country's trial. The ringing resolution passed on Friday gave ample proof of this fact.

"The first obligation of our organization, as well as that of all other associations, is to support the government's war policy. At the same time we are engaged in the campaign for the immediate enfranchisement of the women of the country.

"To these ends I hereby pledge my service and the utmost of my ability in the event of my election.

700 CONVERTS CONFIRMED BY CARDINAL

Prelate Speaks on Meaning of the Faith to Large Audience at Cathedral

More than 700 converts from nearly every part of the diocese were confirmed today at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross by Cardinal O'Connell. There was a large crowd to witness the impressive ceremony.

The service began with the celebration of mass by the Rev. William E. Conroy, D. D. Immediately after the mass, the cardinal addressed the candidates for confirmation as follows:

"My dear Children in Christ:

"All of you here this morning, about to receive the great sacrament of confirmation, are as it were new heirs to the kingdom of God. Perhaps late in life and often, many experiences, all of which probably have tried the patience of your souls, your mind has finally received the great light, the great light which ought to illumine every man that cometh into the world—the light of faith, the light of God's radiance by which we are enabled to see God himself in this world.

LESSON TAUGHT BY WAR.

"Is it not clear to you all now, in this period of disaster in the world's history, that it is absolutely true that all the world that all life without God is a phantom?

"Ah, the sorrows and the sufferings of these days are teaching that to millions of people who are only beginning now to understand it. So turn beloved children to Christ, turn towards the altar where the blessed lamb of God rests, for your salvation, and thank Almighty God for the gift of his faith, for the gift of his sacraments. Become through confirmation true soldiers of Jesus Christ; ready to go out and do battle in his name and in his glory, ready to plant the standard of the cross.

"Be true to your faith. It is the greatest thing in the world. It is the noblest gift of God. Go out and defend it if necessary, but most of all glorify God by the lives you lead, show to all the world that your faith has really given you the light of light, that the sacraments have given you a new strength to walk in the ways of God.

EXAMPLES OF FAITH.

"Show to everybody about you, for remember they are watching you closely, show them what it is to be a Catholic. Go to the sacraments often, because without them your soul cannot live. They go out wherever you work, wherever you play, wherever you are in any sense, as an example of the living faith of God. Show the world what it is to know God, show the world what it is to love God. Show the world what it is to serve God in the Catholic church of Christ."

PROMISES TO SETTLE; IS PUT ON PROBATION

Harry Silverstein, forty-eight, of Stamford street, charged with the larceny of $15 from the Ladies' Protective Gordon Lodge No. 2, United Hebrew of America, was before Judge Dana H. Lyon in the Municipal Court. He was found guilty, and placed on probation, with the understanding that he make restitution of the full amount.

The theft was committed last November, the police allege. At that time Silverstein was treasurer of the lodge and was bonded by a bonding company. Soon after the story of the theft Silverstein agreed to pay back the money. He failed to do this, the police allege, and the bonding company made good.

LARIVEE STILL MEMBER OF NEWON POLICE FORCE

The full bench of the Supreme Court today ruled that Frank Larivee is still a member of the Newton police department, thus ending a six months' fight. Several days Larivee handed in his resignation as requested. Six months ago it was accepted. He claimed that the dismission was illegal, and the full bench has taken this view of the matter.

* * *

The Women's Relief Corps, connected with Gen. S. C. Lawrence Post 66, of Medford, will hold plain memorial exercises Memorial Day afternoon, when they will throw the wreaths on the Mystic River with wild flowers gathered by school children.

* * *

U. S. Grant Post 4, of Melrose has among its members one who is also an active member of the Sons of Veterans. He is Dr. J. S. Clark, who served as a surgeon in the medical corps with the Union troops in the far South. His father was an officer of the Union army at the same time.

* * *

* * *

James A. Perkins Post 156, of Everett, which formerly had a membership of nearly 300, now has a membership of but forty-three veterans.

* * *

Tonight, when the head of the family goes home, the talk will turn strangely to subjects regarding elephants, and tigers, and gilt and tinsel and beautiful ladies, on horseback. There will be an amazing amount of rectitude on the part of the growing members of the family. There will be no end of little favors for the head of the house, and a marvelous showing of thought and care for the Man Who Pays the Bills. And all for the reason that tomorrow morning there comes to town the Barnum & Bailey Greatest Show on Earth.

Five long trains will come rolling into the B. & A. Railway freight yards Sunday morning. They will contain all that is wonderful in the circus world, and within an hour after their arrival a city of tents will go into the air out at the Huntington avenue circus lot, where performances will be given twice daily for six days.

And since the circus is coming Monday, since Monday will bring the blaring of the bands and the guffaw of the clowns, it might be the proper thing to tell a few of the entertainments that are to come with the Greatest Show on Earth.

Just for instance, there will be Paleni's Bears who skate, ride bicycles and wire walking. The Imperial Siegrist-Silbon troupe of acrobats; Signor Hagenbil the fanny dwarf equestrian; Orrin and Victoria Davenport, premiers of equestrianism; Bird Millman, a fairy on a cobweb, and something like 200 other acts.

Then, of course, there will be the spectacle. But the spectacle should be first—for it is this which begins the performance of the Greatest Show on Earth. This year it is called "Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp." More than twelve hundred and fifty persons are needed to carry out the story.

In the riding features of the show this year the Hannaford family of riders from England hold a high place. That is only the beginning of the amusements that are to come with the big circus.

Everything from a kindergarten of baby animals to a polar bear that smokes a pipe is to be in the program —so how on earth is there a chance to depict all the things that are to happen beneath the great tent when the circus comes to town.

Beg Pardon? A parade? Certainly. That will come Monday. The performances are to be given, rain or shine, of course, and will come at 2 o'clock afternoon and 8 o'clock night.

HARVARD R. O. T. C. TAKES CLASS OF PREP STUDENTS

Thirty young men, students at preparatory schools, are to enlist in the Harvard R. O. T. C. summer camp, without tuition fee, to act as a headquarters company. These cadets will be considerably under military age, and will take part in the drilling, as well as bayonet and grenade work, but will not attend the military lectures. Members of the Harvard military course will officer the company.

The Department of the Northeast has wired the War Department asking if they cannot admit to the June camp all Harvard men under age who desire to go. Nearly 200 have applied.

MITZI TONIGHT: 'HIGH AND DRY' MONDAY

John B. Schoeffel is wearing a broad and joyful smile for tonight will mark the revival of the old days of Summer opera at the cool Tremont.

Colonel Henry W. Savage, the Boston manager who founded the Castle Square Opera Company and has since produced a marvelous list of musical comedy successes, including the greatest hit of the century, "The Merry Widow," is conducting this revival, and his offering is Mitzi Hajos, excuse me—Mitzi in "Head Over Heels."

Mitzi has legally amputated her Hajos appendage and is now probably the only star in the world who is compelled to get along with a Christian name for a surname.

Mitzi is an original.

Her personality is singular and unique. Everybody who saw her in "Pom Pom" agreed that she was delightful, but nobody could pronounce her last name, so it was thrown overboard and sank without a splash.

She has been compared to Lotta and Maggie Mitchell. Alice Oates, a vest pocket prima donna of the seventies, slightly suggested her. Mitzi combines the audacity of a rakish little sparrow, the grace of a humming bird and the tuneful melodiousness of a meadow lark—to crib a line from the enthusiastic press agent.

She is a versatile little person. She shed the voluminous skirts of "Sara" for the boy's ragged trousers in "Pom Pom," and now she appears in the tights and spangles of a little foreign acrobat in "Head Over Heels."

If Mitzi continues to disrobe she cannot go much farther. Anything from now on would be a step backward.

Extra Dry.

A new type is to be introduced to the stage next Monday at the Wilbur, when the "dry boss" makes his bow.

What is a dry boss?

He is the boss of a prohibition town. "High and Dry," the comedy by Lewis R. Ely, a St. Louis newspaperman, deals with conditions in parts of the Middle West, which appear to demonstrate that when you take the saloon out of politics you don't do away with corrupt politicians.

A new producing firm, Orr & Welch, which has already one big success to its credit, "The Kiss Burglar," is responsible for "High and Dry."

The heroine of the piece is a lady journalist, played by Edna Baker. How she spills the dirt bone supplies lots of excitement and laughter.

Bigger, Not Better.

Secrets of the film business are being rashly revealed, in a suit for the adjustment of a great motion picture corporation. Its efforts to demonstrate that the rapidly increasing salaries of stars, advertising expenses and cost of production are making a financially successful picture scarce.

The film men declare that the public is continually demanding better pictures, and to give them to it requires an ever-increasing amount.

The trouble with most film men is that they do not know the difference between bigger and better.

If they hear a complaint about one of their pictures they try to rectify it by introducing 10,000 more people into their next production.

The weak spot in the picture business has always been in the payment of authorship. Some of these concerns will spend $100,000 producing a photoplay for which they paid the author $50. In most cases they get what they pay for—a fifty-dollar play. It's like taking a piece of window glass and putting it in a magnificent gold and platinum setting.

America's playwrights and novelists have not studied the making of scenarios for motion pictures because there was no money in it.

Such men as Rex Beach and Harry Leon Wilson have sold the picture rights of novels for a large sum and permit their work to be dramatised by some studio hack who turned the scenario out between darkness and dawn.

The making of a photoplay scenario should be as careful and artistic an effort as the making of a play or an opera.

The best photoplays have been produced by directors with imagination, if no literary training, who have breathed the breath of life into the work of the master scenario writers. Studies without such directors, and many of them are without such men, supply the ordinary output of cheap melodrama and shopworn camera tricks.

"Princess" Richards

One of the most unusual theatrical assignments has fallen to the lot of Richard Richards, a well-known press agent, who is traveling from Maine to California representing the Princess Theatre and F. Ray Comstock. Mr. Richards represented "Experience" and "Oh Boy" in Boston last season. He expects to return from the Pacific Coast in time to bring "Oh Lady, Lady," the most recent of Princess Theatre attractions, to Boston. This spritely entertainment will invest the Wilbur Theatre early in July.

The Princess Theatre is the tiny New York House from which has emerged such successes as "Nobody Home," "Very Good, Eddy" and "Oh Boy." Pretty girls, brightness and clean fun are features common to all of them.

Copley Continues War Plays.

Henry Jewett has decided to keep the Copley Theatre open during the Summer, and a little group of dramas dealing with the war will help make the Dartmouth street playhouse popular. Last season "The Man Who Stayed at Home," ran for six months clear through the heated spell.

Tomorrow "Arms and the Girl," a comedy dealing with an episode of the war in Belgium, will be given. It will be followed by "The Man Who Went," by W. A. Tremayne, a companion piece to "The Man Who Stayed at Home."

A revised version of "Inside the Lines" is to be done, numerous changes being made in this play by Earl Derr Biggars, a Boston author, to bring it up to date. It has recently celebrated its six hundredth performance in London.

Duggan Does His Duty.

Walter Duggan, one of the best known theatrical press agents in this country, came to Boston ahead of "High and Dry," last Monday, and next day received notification that he had been drafted and to report to Greenville, S. C. He had known, of course, that he would be called very shortly, but despite his qualifications for clerical or publicity work for the government, he had declined to use any influence to land a soft job.

"I want to put the old uniform on, and not ask anything better than the rest fellow gets. When I saw President Wilson walking all over New York in the Red Cross parade last week, exposing himself to the bullet of anybody who wanted to take a shot at him, I said to myself, 'if he can do that, I am a young fellow and I can do whatever they ask me to do.'"

A party of Boston theatrical men and newspaper men presented him with one of those watches which tell time in the dark at a little dinner Thursday night.

In a round of the theatres of Boston the past week it was truly inspiring to see the co-operation given to the Red Cross by the theatres. On every hand were the temporary portable booths, with their charming and meticulous occupants busily engaged counting the currency and coins literally poured in upon them. At one theatre, the Majestic, the entire gross receipts from the Wednesday matinee showing of D. W. Griffith's "Hearts of the World," were turned over to the Red Cross headquarters to help the Second War Fund. During the intermissions all theatre Red Cross workers were permitted to take their time in the matter of speaking or collecting funds or distributing literature. Performance schedules were rearranged to meet the conditions and on all sides the managers went out of their way to help this splendid organization in its work.

Theatres the world over can be depended upon to do more than their "bit" when emergency of any character presents itself. And the actors, too, are unique—more than willing to oblige when called upon to give their services for any worthy cause.

TREMONT THEATRE

The keenest interest has been displayed since the announcement that Mr. Savage's offering would be "the only Mitzi," in a new play with music, entitled "Head Over Heels," with its initial performance at the Tremont tonight.

"Head Over Heels" is the romance of a little girl acrobat, who comes to America with her "brothers and sisters" of the troupe. Head over heels in mischief, in business and in love, each in its turn and each the most energetically; is Mitzi as the whimsical child star.

The stage again has chosen distinct "types" for the characters in the cast, and among the players are many names famous in their work.

Jerome Kern, the composer of the world-known comedy successes, "Oh Boy," "Very Good Eddie" and "Have a Heart," has given the lovers of light opera his best work in "Head Over Heels," with its song hits and dance numbers that will linger long in the memory.

Book and lyrics are by Edgar Allan Woolf, who has collaborated with Jerome Kern in several recent successes. It is suggested by the story "Shadows," by Naibro Bartley. The piece is staged by George Marion, the master of stage craft.

WILBUR THEATRE

Among American stage heroines the real favorite is still the sweet and indomitable girl who defends her own good name, and while proving herself to be of a romantic nature, at the same time shows that she is thoroughly capable of paddling her own canoe. Of such a favorite type is the heroine of "High and Dry," Lewis R. Ely's new romantic comedy, which comes to the Wilbur Theatre Monday night under the direction of W. P. Orr and J. M. Welch, sponsors of Broadway's latest musical success, "The Kiss Burglar."

Clare Bland, the dominant figure in this absorbing story of Middle Western life, is a young reporter, who runs afoul of an unscrupulous Missouri politician while she is working in Washington. The struggle between them moves from the National Capital to the Congressman's home town, which is ostensibly a prohibition stronghold, but which, in fact, is demoralised by "family spirits" that he manufactures. The editor of the local paper is one of his victims. But the dauntless girl reporter gets the editor on her side and starts a row that ends in the downfall of the dry boss.

COPLEY THEATRE

The Henry Jewett Players will present at the Copley Theatre Monday evening, for the first time in Boston, "Arms and the Girl," by Grant Stewart and Robert Baker. It is a war comedy, its scenes being in Belgium during the early days of the German invasion, its characters being a group of American tourists, who by chance are travelling in that country, with several German soldiers to add picturesqueness to the dramatic presence.

Comedy is the leading role of "Arms and the Girl." Its dramatic situations, of which there are many, being mingled with plenty of humor, a touch of heroics and a large amount of gripping and appealing sentiment. Humor, in fact, has a leading part in its action throughout all its acts, and the romantic incident of the newly-wedded couple gives the dramatists an abundant opportunity for a series of amusing scenes and a diverting dialogue.

As staged under the personal direction of Henry Jewett, "Arms and the Girl" will be given a completely effective production. The cast will include H. Conway Wingfield as General Klaus, Fred W. Permain as M. Richepin, Lionel Glenister as Wilfred Ferrers, B. N. Lewin as Lieutenant von Elbe, Cameron Matthews as the corporal, Beatrice Miller as Trinette, Jessamine Newcombe as Olga Katnovitch and Viola Roach as Ruth Sherwood.

GAYETY THEATRE

There are three distinct novelties offered by the Mollie Williams show that starts a week's engagement at the Gayety Theatre next Monday.

One is a newly written satire, and said to be of a laughable order, entitled "A Day at Atlantic," by Billy K. Wells and Hal R. Dyson. These two musical plays are said to be new to burlesque patrons, interpolated with many pleasing musical numbers that are fresh and most appealing. The locale is none other than the popular board walk of the well-known resort, the dialogue being timely, rosy and risque, with rip-plingly laughable situations.

With ten or more principals dressing through their lines in a characteristic manner, and a typical Mollie Williams chorus, attired in novel dress designs, the audience is sure to fall into an imaginative mood and enjoy the antics of the various comedians, as well as the prepossessing and dashing air of the lady principals, among whom are Michelina Gardner, Nell Gilbert, Florence Kelly and Mollie Williams.

The comedy and straight entertainers are Ambark Ali, Earl Sheahan, Bob Gilbert and Billy McIntyre, the latter being the son of McIntyre of the famous team McIntyre and Heath, and his first appearance in burlesque is sure to be enjoyed by the Gayety patrons.

WALDRON'S CASINO

This is to be one of the big weeks of the season at Waldron's, for it will mark the return of Charlie Waldron's own popular Bostonians, one of the finest organizations in the burlesque field. This return engagement has been prompted by many requests on the part of patrons of the Casino.

The company includes many favorites. Chief among them is Phil Ott, as versatile and skilful a comedian as ever appeared in burlesque. He will have the assistance of such clever entertainers as Jimmie Hunter, Ed Hasley, Jack Wirth, William Lynch, Nettie Nelson, Kitty Mitchell, Gladys Parker, Sue Randall and the Carnival Trio. A cast with class—that tells the whole story of the Bostonians' great success. The musical show in which the Waldron's favorites appear is a lively, tuneful piece called "Little Old New York." It boasts of many fine spectacular features.

The principals are well supported by one of the best singing and dancing choruses ever seen in burlesque.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

Topping the list of stars will be Robert Bosworth, well known on both the screen and dramatic stage as one of the foremost characeor actors of his time. Mr. Bosworth will be seen in a dramatic version of Jack London's great novel "The Sea Wolf," which was one of his starring vehicles in the films. The test of a comedian is generally in the number of laughs he provokes, and Jack Wilson has always been credited to supply more laughs than the average individual could count.

Florence Ames and Adelaide Winthrop, late dancing features with Raymond Hitchcock in Hitchy-Koo," are returning to vaudeville with a clever vehicle, which they call "Caught in a Jamb." The clever interpretative dancing of the pair is one of the best features of their offering. No more remarkable specimens of Indian leopards than Valletta's have ever been in captivity. Hunting and Francis, in "Love Blossoms"; Burt Earle and company; Columbia and Victor, with Barto and Clark; Donald Roberts; the Le Valles, and the news pictures complete the bill.

ST. JAMES THEATRE

A holiday bill of vaudeville is offered at Loew's St. James Theatre the first half of the week, with two great headliners featuring the program. Phil E. Adams and his company of eight people, which includes Herman Myers and a beauty chorus, will present the musical comedy innovation, "The Fascinating Flirts." Companion leader of the bill is the act of Wood, Melville and Phillips in a pot pourri of songs and comedy. Other acts on the bill include Saxton and Farrell in their comedy of theatrical life, "The Troubles of an Actress"; Fesco Duo, harpist and singer, and Bicknell, the model baker. On the screen there will be shown the latest News Pictorial, a comedy, and the photoplay, "The Reason Why," picturing Clara Kimball Young, a screening of the story by Eleanor Glyn.

ORPHEUM THEATRE

The vaudeville bill for the first half of the week at Loew's Orpheum promises a well balanced program of entertainment. The leading act will be the Old Homestead Eight, well remembered in this city as a double quartette of excellent singers, and they will be heard in "Songs of Yesterday and Today." Another prominent act will be that of Jackson and Wahl, favorites of musical shows, who will offer, "A Breeze From Musical Shows." Eddie Foyer, known in vaudeville as "the man of a thousand poems," is also a prominent entertainer in the bill. Others to appear are Annette Dare, singing a program of her own songs; Thornton and Thornton, in songs and comedy; and the Winton Brothers in equilibristic feats. On the screen there will be shown the latest News Pictorial, a film comedy, and the photoplay, "The Man Hunt," picturing Ethel Clayton. The title suggests the theme of the story, which is an unusual composition. It relates to a young woman, alone in the world and possessed of great wealth. Her advisers recommend that she marry, and in looking about for the most eligible, she remembers a sweetheart of her youth, a foreman in her own mines. Then begins the man hunt.

NANTASKET BEACH

Today the early Summer schedule of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company goes into effect. Frederic Lane, the general manager of this company, has provided a most complete schedule of running time of the boats for this summer. "It is only a question," says Mr. Lane, "of obtaining the necessary help to operate the steamers, and we are straining every effort to line up our different crews for the summer. There are already indications in commission, and the early cottagers at the beach claim that they are enjoying the best service ever offered at this time of year."

The attractions at Nantasket Beach are too numerous to enumerate. The beach itself is without question the finest in New England, a broad expanse of seven miles, with a smooth, sandy surface. The bathing facilities are unexcelled, the State having provided a most modern bathhouse. A broad pavilion overlooks the ocean, where, later in the season, the State Band furnishes free concerts. A number of new attractions are being built for the coming Summer, and Paragon Park is undergoing a great change, and has many surprises in view for the Summer visitors. Besides the regular trips to the beach General Manager Lane is operating two of the steamers of his fleet for the government doing special harbor

THE POPS

This week, the fourth of the season of pops in Symphony Hall, promises to be one of the most interesting of the entire year. There are several special nights. Of very great interest to the public will be tomorrow (Monday), May 27, when the proceeds of the concert will be devoted to the Second Red Cross war fund. Efforts have been made to have this quite the finest program the pops ever had. In addition to the orchestra, of seventy-five Symphony players under Mr. Jacchia, there will be a male chorus of 150 or more men under Stephen Townsend. This chorus is composed chiefly of members of the male section of the Boston Symphony chorus and of the Apollo Club. There will be many songs, and all of them popular war songs.

In the first intermission there will be three songs by Lieutenant Gitz Rice of the First Canadian Contingent, "We Beat You at the Marne," "I Want to Go Home" and "Keep Your Head Down, Fritzie Boy," the solo parts of which will be sung by John W. Pierce. In the middle of the second section Frederic S. Converse of this city will conduct his own chorus, "Under the Stars and Stripes," the solo part of which will be sung by Charles Bennett. In the second intermission there will be a song by Jean Koren, "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit-Bag," by George Asaf; "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," with a setting by Stephen Townsend, and "We're Going Over," the solo parts of which will be sung by Charles Bennett, Ralph Brown and John W. Pierce. Then at the beginning of the third part will be the three popular songs, "Keep the Home Fires Burning," "A Long, Long Trail" and "Over There."

NEW PARAGON PARK TO OPEN

For another season, more attractive than ever before, replete with a more extensive, varied and important list of attractions than ever before, will open for the season next Wednesday night, with a special inaugural celebration which will continue through the following day and evening, on Memorial Day, May 30. As usual the grand Palm Garden, with its seaside airiness, splendid cuisine, capital cabaret, and dansant accomodations, will continue to be the centre of attraction.

The main feature of the cabaret will continue to be "Neptune's Dream," with eight beautiful girls indulging in a wonderful variety of aquatorial sports in a sunken swimming pool on the cabaret stage while 2,000 diners look on in admiration. Another big cabaret feature will be the new Paragon Revue of 1918, enlisting the services of twenty-five girls, with comedians and special novelty orchestra in addition.

The Giant Roller Coaster, the biggest in the world, with a thrilling ride of nearly a mile and a half, will be one of the park's greatest sights and pleasures. Rivalling it is the Mill Rapids ride, finishing with "Shoot the Chutes," a trip through canals and caverns. Other features of great interest to all Paragon visitors are Hilarity Hall, full of new "stunts," and the palatial dance hall, with accommodates 1,500 couples.

Among the free open air circus attractions will be De Carno, the European marvel, defying all laws of nature on top of a 100-foot pole.

PEMBERTON INN NOW OPEN FOR THE SEASON.

Pemberton Inn, that most popular of seaside dining places on the Atlantic coast, where the menu is exceptionally appealing, where one may feast the eyes as well as the appetite, opens for the season tonight in a blaze of glory. Manager George A. Dodge has provided for his guests this season a distinctly remarkable cabaret program, which includes many novelty features in addition to the Jazz band which was such a popular feature last Summer.

BOSTON THEATRE

The Boston Theatre, true to its policy of presenting only exclusive film features and top-notch vaudeville, has arranged an attractive program for next week. The feature film attraction will be "The Bride's Awakening," starring dainty little Mae Murray, well known star of both stage and screen. The Lavenberg Sisters, a dancing team of stellar quality, will head the list of vaudeville stars. "The Bride's Awakening" is a convincing preachment against clandestine weddings, the statistics of which prove that ninety-eight per cent. end either in separation or in a tragedy.

BARA KNOWS ALL ABOUT APACHES

Theda Bara, the justly toasted vamp-ire turned studio director for a few minutes when "The Soul of Buddha" was being filmed. Before the war Theda went on a vacation and visited the vampire's heaven, Paris. There she browsed among the Apache dens, the promenades of the music halls, and the boulevards where the French variety of siren was likely to be found.

One of the scenes in "The Soul of Buddha" was an Apache's den in Paris. When Miss Bara walked upon the scene and saw the settings she laughed, a bright and merry laugh.

"What's wrong?" demanded the director. "Anything the matter with this set?"

"Yes, everything," replied the star. Then she explained how a den of Apaches in Paris ought to look, and the studio artists and carpenters soon constructed one which suited her.

She is on view next week at the Park in "The Soul of Buddha."

Pete Pigeon Pensioned.

Norma Talmadge, the motion pic-ture star, has taken upon herself the altruistic obligation that several dig-nitaries of the theatre have assumed, that of having a list of pensioners, whom she supplies with a steady in-come. Not that she wishes to re-ceive aggrandizement because of this —it was only by accident that her press representative became apprised of the fact. And it is parenthetic-ally inserted here that her new de-pendent is not liable to deplete her exchequer considerably, for he de-scended upon her from a clear sky, carrying his luggage upon his back, and he aims to stay for quite a while. Peter Pigeon is his name, and he's a bird.

Miss Talmadge and said innocent press agent, were walking from the studio where she was posing for her latest photoplay, "De Luxe Annie," in which she will be shown for the first times in Boston the latter part of next week at the Colonial Theatre. They were startled by a whirring sound, and a dark object came hurt-ling through the air almost on them. Visions of enemy bombs passed their minds, but there at the lady's feet was an inanimate feathered object, which examination found it to be a large pigeon, evidently injured in flight, and unable to keep aloft.

Notoriously tender hearted, Miss Talmadge picked it up, and insisted upon taking it back to the studio. There a bird doctor was called in, and, after a lengthy consultation, an-nounced that his patient would be well with proper treatment. Board and lodging were secured for Peter in a bird hospital, and as a result he is living upon the seed of the land preening the feathers he didn't lose on his arrival. And as for Miss Tal-madge, she is pleased as Punch over her latest acquisition.

Prunella Pruned.

It has been the practice when a play that has been adapted for the screen is presented in photoplay form, entirely revolutionary methods are taken to reproduce the story. This is because the motion picture must re-veal its story to the eyes alone with-out the advantage of the spoken word. But it was a different story with "Prunella," the latest photoplay of Marguerite Clark, which will be given its first Boston showing throughout next week at the Beacon Theatre.

The writers of the play were Gran-ville Barker, master technician as well as playwright, and Laurence Housman, and so capably did they construct their play that even with-out the words of the text the action revealed its story, a consummation in drama that bespeaks an artistic ex-cellence deserving to be classicized. Thus when the play was translated to the screen the action moved in similar sequence to the stage ver-sion.

Incidentally, Miss Clark played the title role on the stage, and in it she created what is probably her greatest success in a theatric story which comes with the same role to conquer motion picture patrons in this story of rare charm, of such simplicity that it suggests almost the fantastic, so closely is it allied to a nursery re-cital. But it is of the older nursery, the period when love seeks its vic-tim among the gods of heart. And in this case it finds the little girl, the closely guarded ward of three splenetic aunts, whose shrunken hearts have been dried in a romance-less existence. And as love laughs at locksmiths, so it overthrows the best laid plans of the girls guardians. "Love in a Garden" was the subtitle of the play, a designation that best fits the story.

A Georgia Peach.

A daughter of the South, from the land of peaches, cotton and mint julep, all of which she suggests in her wholesomeness, her bitheseome-ness and piquancy of manner, is Louise Huff, the dainty little motion picture star, whose last few impersonations on the screen have been with Jack Pickford, with whom she will be seen in the new photoplay, "Mile-a-Minute Kendall," in its first showings in Boston at the Modern Theatre through all of next week.

A native of Columbus, Georgia, she was educated in local schools and in a finishing school in New York city. As a girl she appeared in many amateur plays, and from this grew her de-cision to make the stage her means of livelihood. Her first stage ap-pearances were in an ingenue role in a road production of "Graustark." From this road company she grad-uated to a New York stock company, and in this nursery of the theatre she gained rounding experience. One of her successes was in "Ben Hur," the classic of the modern stage.

Miss Huff is a fraction over five feet in height, has light fluffy hair and shadowy gray eyes with fair com-plexion.

PARK THEATRE

Manager Thomas H. Sorlero has ar-ranged a bill of unparalleled excel-lence for next week, the headliner being Theda Bara, in her most recent screen success, "The Soul of Buddha," in which Miss Bara takes the part of a half caste East Indian girl, the daughter of a Javanese widow, who was a devout believer in the worship of Buddha. The East Indian girl de-votes all her spare time to dancing wierd dances. She falls in love with a handsome English officer, and for-sakes her religion and her Buddha oath. A child is born, the couple, which is marked for death by Yezra, a Buddhist priest, who secretly loves the dancer.

Following on the bill is Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, in their first and only six-act production, a Metro feature, that surpasses anything the well known people have ever done, in "Pay Day." This screen entertain-ment shows the trials and tribula-tions of Doris Fenton, a "poor work-ing girl," who fails in love with Kirke Brentwood, a heartless villain in evening clothes.

The famous Christie comedy, "Red Cross," follows on the bill, and the Pathe Weekly shows events of local interest.

BEACON THEATRE

The two first-run photoplays to be shown at the Beacon Theatre throughout the week include Mar-guerite Clark in a screening of the stage play, "Prunella," in which the little star had made her own to great success. It is a delightful story of a little girl, closely guarded by two maiden aunts from contact with the world. A play of charm, it is said that in its film form, so fanciful and artistic the treatment, that an in-nocent delight is afforded for the spectator. On the same bill will be shown "Mile-a-Minute Kendall," pic-turing Wallace Reid as the fast mov-ing son of a wealthy man who dis-inherits his heir because of his wild-oats sowing. A girl of a country town where he is set down helps him in his venture to conquer his bad habits and his efforts to make his own fortune, with the result that he obtains his parents forgiveness and wins the girl.

MODERN THEATRE

The photoplay program at the Modern Theatre promises unusual treats, there being two film plays shown for the first times in Boston, which are as opposite as the poles in story and treatment. Of the two there is promised a wealth of ap-pealing delight in the screen transla-tion of "Prunella," picturing Mar-guerite Clark in a story of rare charm, of such simplicity that it is allied to nursery tales, though it is of the older nursery that it treats, the period when love seeks its victims from the pure of heart. The sub-title worn by the play in stage form, "Love in a Dutch Garden," best de-fines it. It is foretold that the treat-ment of setting and picturing invests the charm of the play with an ex-quisiteness that multiplies many fold its appeal. The companion photoplay for the entire week will be "Mile-a-Minute Kendall," picturing Wallace Reid as the speedy son of wealth.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

Stars of first eminence feature the all-photoplay bills to be shown at the Columbia Theatre through the week, the first half including William S. Hart, in his latest release, "Selfish Yates," picturing him as a man of breed and unscrupulousness, won to goodness through the love of a good girl; Pauline Frederick, in "Resurrec-tion," a screening of Count Tolstoy's powerful story of the moral rehabili-tation of a young Russian woman in the days of the monarchy, a role fit-ting Miss Frederick's emotional act-ing gifts. For the last half there will be shown Clara Kimball Young, in "The Reason Why."

GLOBE THEATRE

The resumption of the policy of pre-senting a varied program of photo-plays at Loew's Globe Theatre is meeting with most generous response. And the management has prepared an other bill compassing the three great-est stars of the motion picture. Mary Pickford will be shown pictured in one of her most popular photoplays, "The Little American," in which she moves in a role that draws from her best gifts. Douglas Fairbanks in "The Man From Painted Post" will also be shown. This is one of his favorite Western roles in which he exhibits his athletic proclivities and inclinations to humor that are irre-sistible. Charlie Chaplin will be shown in his comic occupation of "The Floorwalker," fulfilling his office to the tune of many a ludicrous incident and catastrophe.

FENWAY THEATRE

Earle Williams plays the leading role in "The Seal of Silence," featured at the Fenway on the first three days of the coming week. Mr. Williams shares the stellar honors with Grace Darmond, who is conceded to be one of the most beautiful and smartest gowned stars in the moving pictures. George Walsh is featured on the same bill, in "Brave and Bold," a farce comedy with a decided punch.

On the last three days of the week William S. Hart appears in his latest production, "Selfish Yates," and Claire Anderson in "Mlle. Paulette," a pleas-ing comedy drama.

The Sunday evening program in-cludes Irene Castle, in "Stranded In Arcady," and Gladys Leslie, in "The Wooing of Princess Pat."

CODMAN SQUARE THEATRE

Two meritable bills of vaudeville and motion pictures are to be offered at the new Codman Square Theatre in Dorchester through the coming week. For the first half there will be presented Lewis and Norton, capable entertainers, in "Bits from Musical Comedy"; the Edah Del-bridge Trio, in a repertoire of pop-ular songs; Gulram and Newell, in a variety offering; "The Calendar Girl," in a posing specialty, and on the screen, the news pictures, a comedy film and a new William Fox photo-play picturing one of his popular stars. There will be an entire change in program on Thursday, when the photoplay will be the patriotic film production, "For the Freedom of the World."

LANCASTER THEATRE

Two more big photoplay bills will be shown at the Lancaster Theatre through the week. For the first half there will be shown, for the first times in Boston, "Her One Mistake," picturing Gladys Brockwell in a dual role of a story placed among people of the nether world; "Social Hypo-crites," picturing May Allison in the leading role, and as an added attrac-tion, "Borrowed Plumage," picturing Bessie Barriscale. The bill for the last half includes "Ghosts of Yester-day."

WAR SONGS.

Prominent featured in the Colum-bia group for June are a quintette of live, up-to-date war song hits. These include "K-K-Katy," a real camp fresh from Fort Niagara, sung by Eugene Buckley; "Lafayette," an ex-pression of America's gratitude to France, by Reed Miller; "The Yanks Started Yankin'," an irresistible thing that you simply can't stop singing once you've begun. It runs something like this, "The Russians Were Rush-in', The Balkans Were Balkin'," and so on—merrily to the end. Arthur Fields sings it, which is a whole vol-ume of testimony as to its musical quality. "Three Wonderful Letters From Home" is the next soldier song, with a sympathetic bit of sentiment running through it, which Henry Burr handles in his own inimitable style, while the list winds up with "The Maxim's of the U. S. A." You can guess what it's about, if you have a soldier at the front who craves candy. Songs like these reflect—sometimes lightly, sometimes with the deepest, truest of feeling—the tre-mendous sentiment with which the world is charged today. To hear them is to feel with a feeling that is beyond the power of words to ex-press.

Do you love great symphonies, and the exquisite bits which are to be found in the more restricted field of the string quartet? In the June Columbia records you will find the overture from "Martha" and the famous "Stradella Overture" on a single record, played by the Phil-harmonic Orchestra of New York under that irection of Josef Stransky; another record embodying the tremendously powerful motifs, the March from Borodin's "Prince Igor," and No. 2 of Iwanow's "Caucasian Sketches" played by Prince's Or-chestra; and Tschaikowsky's "An-dante Cantabile" and "Traumerei," both played by the Boston String Quartet. Here is music that needs no description—indeed, music that no descriptions could possibly de-scribe.

BIG WAR FILM BUILT ON FACTS

So many questions have been asked regarding the taking of the remark-able scenes in D. W. Griffith's "Hearts of the World," current at the Majestic Theatre, that a brief resume of this notable work will be of inter-est to those who have seen the pro-duction and those who are planning to see it before the Boston engage-ment is terminated.

According to Mr. Griffith himself, "Hearts of the World" was brought into being in this way: Mr. Griffith went to Europe to procure scenes for six artcraft pictures which he was under contract to make. He was just about to start back to the United States when Lord Beaverbrook of the British publicity bureau approached him with a request. He said that the government was about to make some official war films, and the valuable experience of Mr. Griffith was de-sired. A number of Great Britain's war officials had seen the American producer's "Birth of a Nation" and "Intolerance," and they felt that he would be the logical man to entrust with a mammoth undertaking setting forth the ideals for which England and France and their allies were fighting. One thing led to another, and it was finally decided to make the official films, but to weave them with a story of charm and power, using the great war only as a back-ground for the unfolding story.

"A crowd of us used to get to-gether," Mr. Griffith says, "and dis-cuss the subject from every angle. We all had our own ideas, but finally it was decided that George de Tolig-nac, the French author, had the right one. M. Tolignac is a close friend of J. M. Barrie.

"He said: 'Just let the story be a simple little heart tale, like one of the many thousands which are being lived each day over here. A simple story about simple folk—such a story as all may understand.' We told him to write it. He named it, too.

"At first I didn't care for the name, 'Hearts of the World,' but now I think it is the best one that could possibly have been chosen. It is a story from the hearts of the world to the hearts of the world. It is a romance of love and action, with a setting of war-stricken France."

"Any country that's good enough to live in is worth fighting for," says the American boy of the story, and he joins the French army. From then on "Hearts of the World" reveals the tremendous scenes of hardship and devastation, scenes that are compell-ing in their realism and heart-stir-ring in their pathos and sentiment.

"Hearts of the World" was eighteen months in the making, during which time Mr. Griffith had a little band of players, including Lillian and Dor-othy Gish, Robert Harron and others, who were at times under heavy bom-bardment by the Germans.

Sixty per cent. of the net profits from the exhibition of this Griffith work goes to the British government for war purposes, so it will be seen that the production is of vital value to the government through whose sanction and co-operation it was made possible.

ARMY AND NAVY AMERICAN

DEMOCRACY BOSTON, SATURDAY, MAY 25, 1918. LIBERTY

NAVAL SHOOTERS OUT FOR NEW RECORDS

By S. HARRY FERRIS.

Aboard the Receiving Ship at Boston, May 25.—The navy ships' rifle team contest takes place at the Wakefield rifle range today. A large number of crack shooters will be present. The ship will be represented by several marksmen from the Stringham detail, and they hope to capture a place near the top, as they have been remarkably successful in similar contests in the past.

The contest will consist of slow fire (ewenty shots), five shots prone, five kneeling, five sitting and five squatting at five hundred yards; also change position firing, twenty shots, four stages and one skirmish run.

Entries will close on May 28 for a championship swimming meet at Ocean Pier, Revere, May 31, in which a number of men from Instructor Sutherland's squad on the ship will take part. The meet will be held under the direction of the New England Association of the A. A. U.

There will be only two events at 50 and 220 yards. Standard A. A. U. gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded to the winners.

It is expected that the meet will help to arouse interest in new courses of swimming instruction that has been established by Admiral Wood's orders in the First Naval District.

Mrs. D. R. Briggs, naval yeowoman attached to Chaplain Arthur W. Stone's staff, is in charge of the Red Cross work of the ship. The records show that she has accomplished a great deal for the comfort of the sailors. Every man that has been on the ship has been provided with a sweater, which has been exchanged for a new one when it became worn. Socks, wristers, helmets, mufflers and comfort bags have been supplied to every sailor when he has been transferred to sea duty. The sewing kits, included in the bags, have been especially appreciated by the boys, as when on board ship there is constant need of minor repairs to clothes.

At the opening of the Sick Day the Red Cross furnished a part of the equipment that was needed in a hurry, and it has ever since maintained a beneficent interest in that part of the ship.

EDITORIAL

The order recently issued at Camp Devens prohibiting men in the service from purchasing or accepting liquor within prohibited zones under penalty of court martial, is one of the most effective blows yet delivered against bootlegging and other violations of the Federal liquor regulations. It places part of the burden of guilt upon any soldier who deliberately urges a civilian to break the law by giving him liquor or selling it to him.

The liquor regulations were made for the good of the men and for the service as a whole, and it is no more than just that the meagre minority of soldiers who seek to get around the law be made to respect it the same as civilians. There would be no bootlegging if soldiers refrained from paying for drinks. The amount of liquor offered to soldiers gratis within prohibited zones is practically negligible.

FINE TEN WHO SOLD LIQUOR TO SOLDIERS

Fines amounting to $220 were imposed by Judge Morton in the United States District Court on ten men who pleaded guilty to aiding or abetting in the sale of liquor to men in the military service. Four of the defendants retracted former pleas of not guilty.

The case against John Durand, aged sixty-four years, was continued, as was also the case against Philip Ledger, aged nineteen years. The following paid $25 fines: John Fairbanks, John Sousa, William Mulhearn, Edward Harper, George Kalos, Ignace Krysiak, Rocco Sardo and Simion Gravel. Fines of $10 were imposed on Edward Johnson and Avit Hantalanen.

Camp Notes

"Boston's Own" was scheduled to be filled to war strength by tonight and the same was true of some of the other infantry regiments. The influx of new men has swamped the new personnel officers of the various regiments who also have their first muster roll under the recent re-organization to get all in time for the men to be paid off.

* * *

Approximately 300 men from Worcester County who came here in the first draft and were assigned to companies in the depot brigade have been transferred into the ammunition train along with the new men from Camp Upton and today this organization was practically at its maximum war strength.

SAYS GERMANY IS IN FEAR OF U. S. ARMY

The heroic fighting of the Allies and the slaughter of Germans charging in mass formation are emphasized in a letter just received by George Grimm of No. 42 Beech Glen street, Roxbury, from Lieutenant L. J. McCarthy of Headquarters, Casual Officers' Depot, American Expeditionary Forces, known at home as "Larry" McCarthy of Roxbury. The letter reads, in part:

"The big German drive is now on and the British are holding all along the line, although greatly outnumbered.

"The French yesterday joined on one side of the line and are giving the German forces ——!

"Today (March 25) the Allies are holding fine and are slaughtering the enemy. It seems to be their (Germans') desire to have things over before the United States army can strike with its full force.

"The German troops are using mass formation and have been horribly slaughtered. They cannot break through. When they realize this they will want peace right away. But they will get peace based on the terms of the Allies or they will be whipped until it is stuffed down their throats.

"I am fine and am working hard and fast. We are having fair weather just now (March 25), and Spring is starting to show up. I hope Boston has thawed out a little by this time."

60-YEAR-OLD SERGEANT TURNS DOWN RECRUIT, 46

John Morrisey of Cambridge entered the army recruiting station, No. 3 Tremont Row, in full anticipation of getting into the army, when he saw at the desk Sergeant Charles Mooney, who has just turned sixty and has seen forty years' army service. Morrisey told the officer he was just forty-six. Sergeant Mooney replied:

"You're too old, we could take you if you were between thirty-one and forty-one years of age."

Morrisey rubbed his chin a while and looked at the sergeant for a time. Then he said:

"Well, how did you get in then?"

ARREST SOLDIER ON SECRET CHARGES

By WILLIAM FLYNN

Camp Devens, Ayer, May 25.—Flavio Giangiobbi of Southbridge is under arrest in the Depot Brigade guardhouse pending an international investigation of his history. The prisoner had been in this country but a short time when he was drafted and sent to this cantonment in a delegation from Southbridge. The attention of the army officials was called to Giangiobbi by the immigration authorities and he was immediately yanked out of his company in the Depot Brigade and placed under arrest.

The military authorities have refused to make public the nature of the charges against Giangiobbi, but they are said to be the first of the kind ever lodged against a soldier at this cantonment. The investigation of Giangiobbi's case, which is now under way, will probably result in his removal from the army.

Six hundred and twenty-four men from New Hampshire, the first of the 2,937 New England draftees ordered to report at this cantonment by next Monday week, were scheduled to reach here today. Some of the men from the southern part of New Hampshire reported before noon, and were checked in at the receiving station at the base hospital.

Two hundred men are coming here from Massachusetts in the present draft, but it was said today they would probably reach the cantonment early next week. The rest of the present increment includes 1,514 draftees from Maine and 599 from Vermont, the largest number either of these States has sent to this cantonment at one time since the cantonment opened.

All of the men who come here in the present draft are supposed to be physically perfect. They are scheduled to spend their first two weeks of army life in quarantine in the depot brigade, although it was intimated that some of the men would be quarantined in the overflow barracks of the infantry regiment to which they will be assigned and would not go into the depot brigade at all. These men are destined to fill vacancies in the division and many of them will take the places of men who have already been transferred to the division, but who have been found unfit for overseas service.

NET LARGE SUM FOR RED CROSS AT AUCTION

With heads of perspiration trickling down his cheeks and sounding the praises of the Shepard Stores for the part they are playing in the Red Cross War Fund drive, George Webb, noted actor, proved himself an adept in the auctioneer line by selling goods from the stage of Keith's Theatre. The articles consisted of a hammock, serving table with glass top, large mirror, automobile trunk and contents and a large Red Cross bust of a nurse's head.

The theatre was crowded with employes of the Shepard Stores, and when it was announced that Mr. Webb was to auction off the articles donated by the management of the Shepard Company unusual interest was manifested. The first article auctioned off was the bust of the Red Cross nurse, which brought forward a number of bids after Mr. Webb had extolled the good women the bust typifies. It was sold to a man for $100 and resold to the same man for $86, after he had offered it again as a gift.

And it came numerous bids on the automblile trunk. The trunk was sold twice for $50 and $60. The mirror netted $65. The hammock went under the hammer for $75.

There were so many bids on the serving table and the money was coming in so fast that Mr. Webb called on Joe Towle, comedian, to tell a few stories while he collected the amounts.

The stories convulsed the audience and then Towle and Webb got in their good work by adding a few more dollars to the fund and the serving table, which was sold for a large sum, was given back with the understanding that it be re-sold tonight.

At the conclusion of the auction the table on the stage was green with money. As Mr. Webb said, "It shows the stuff the Shepard Stores is putting across for the boys over there and the Red Cross War Fund drive."

SENTENCED FOR NEGLECT OF DEAD WIFE AND BABY

Three months in the House of Correction and the admonition that he was one of the kind of men who ought to be shot, were given William O. Hutchinson of Lynn, formerly of Everett, when he was arraigned in the Malden Court before Judge Riley for failure to comply with the terms of his probation in supporting his wife, "If proper punishment were meted out, you would be taken out and shot," declared the court. Hutchinson was trying to enlist in the army when arrested in Lynn for the Malden police. During his absence in Lynn his wife and baby both died, but he failed to attend the funeral.

The Court Club of Winthrop will hold its first dance of the Summer tonight at the Winthrop Beach Casino. J. C. Heinrick and partner, dancing experts, of New York, are appearing in an exhibition of modern ballroom dancing. Miss Alice McCourt, noted prima donna, will sing the following songs: "Just a Little Cottage," "My Gal Sal," "Merrily We'll Roll Along," "After the War Is Over," "What'll We Do With Him Boys" and "Over the Top With Riley."

These songs will appear in tomorrow's SUNDAY ADVERTISER AND AMERICAN along with many others. The club will also introduce a new novelty dancing contest, called the "Elimination dance."

TEMPLE BROTHERHOOD HAS 250 IN SERVICE

There are 250 men from the Tremont Temple brotherhood in war service.

Lieutenant William H. Oates, one of the members, has just written to Dr. D. M. Lockrow, leader of the brotherhood, giving an account of how he killed one big German and took fifteen prisoners.

A big war rally will soon be held in the Tremont Temple to read the letters of boys of this brotherhood who are fighting for democracy.

EX-MAYOR MULLEN ASKS EVERETT LOAN HELD UP

Former Mayor John J. Mullen of Everett called on the Legislative Committee on Finance at the State House and asked them to hold up bill No. 1529 until he and other Everett citizens had a chance to be heard in opposition to its passage. The bill, according to Mr. Mullen, calls for a loan from the State of $50,000 to enable taxes in Everett.

EXTRA DIME NOW FOR RIDE TO NANTASKET

The new schedule of increased fares was put into effect by the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company today.

Under the new rates, single fares to Nantasket Beach are now thirty-five cents, but there has been no increase in the price of trip tickets. These trip tickets are not good on Sundays, however.

General Manager Fred L. Lane said that he had heard no adverse criticism of the new schedule. He said:

"It became a question of continuing the service. Several plans for increasing the revenue were under consideration, but we turned them all down except the increase in transient fares. We thought that was fair to our regular patrons who invested in property at the beaches with the understanding that the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company would furnish service.

"Some idea of our increases in expenses may be gained from the single item of coal. We used to pay $3.50 per long ton for coal, but now we pay from $11 to $12 per short ton."

The charge of twenty-five cents for single fares to Pemberton and Hull from Boston has not been increased.

CLOSE DEVENS TO VISITORS SUNDAY

By WILLIAM FLYNN

Camp Devens, Ayer, May 25—All visitors will be barred from the camp tomorrow. This is in accordance with orders issued by Major-General Harry F. Hodges, and for the next few months the lid of secrecy will be clamped tight on all military operations within the cantonment.

It is also expected that the week-end liberty granted officers and enlisted men will be greatly curtailed during the Summer.

None but military vehicles containing soldiers will be allowed to enter the camp on Sunday. The guards at the gates and at other points, both inside and outside of the camp, will be increased.

The new order will probably put a huge dent in the receipts of the 450 jitneys which heretofore have transported thousands of visitors through the cantonment on Sundays. It will also bring disappointment to a host of persons who had planned to spend the day in camp with soldier friends or relatives who were unable to secure leave of absence over the week-end.

RIVAL SOX IN SUNDAY CONTEST

Will Be Championship Affair, With Splendid Red Cross Getting Entire Receipts

By NICK FLATLEY.

Big league Sunday baseball as a reality has come to Boston.

The Red Sox and champion Chicago White Sox play a regular championship game tomorrow at Fenway Park.

The biggest baseball day in this season's history is just some twenty-odd hours off. Pleasant weather and a capacity crowd is sure to prove to all doubters, if there are any left now, that Boston wants, and should have, Sunday baseball.

The game will be played for the Red Cross. Every cent of the receipts will be turned over to the organization. The officials of the two contending clubs and the league bosses are responsible for an affair that should set the great American society at least $10,000.

EVERYBODY'S A BOOSTER.

Governor McCall, Mayor Peters and the Public Safety Committee gladly sanctioned the proposed game.

It will cost the Boston club a pretty penny, as the Monday contest with the Champions has been declared off. It takes a game right out of the biggest series of this Spring, but the loss will be borne with a smile.

It puts a kink also in the Barrow plans of conserving his pitchers; the Sunday rest is an important factor in the scheme of things right now. But the manager is glad to be able to do his bit. Clarence Rowland of the White Sox likewise agreed eagerly to the plan.

The game will start at 3:45 o'clock. Regular admission prices will be charged, with no war tax addendum. The contest will be a great one anyhow, bringing together as it does the two leading contenders for the 1913 American League pennant.

A THREE ALL-AROUND.

Then, the fact that the funds will go to the Red Cross, and the additional one that it's Sunday will help along a lot. Thousands of fans have been too busy to see real big league baseball this season, will now have their opportunity, and will snatch at it.

That the game will be a torrid contest was forecasted in the first clash of the teams. The Red Sox got 5 to 4, the victory counter coming over in the ultimate inning when Bullet Joseph Bush slammed the apple-shot to centre with the bases somewhat crowded.

Bullet Joseph had previously knocked off two runs with a single, and pitched great ball, except for the fact that his support cracked in one round sufficiently to hand the hostiles two scores.

WHITE SOX WOBBLE.

Chicago errors cut into the picture when the Barrow brigade staged its big inning and carved out four tallies in the fifth. Another departure from fielding grass on the part of Schalk set the stage for the Bush batting finale. So that made it just about even.

Red Faber, who once stole third with somebody here, started pitching for the Rowlands, and went along well enough. But for the errors we have mentioned he might have won. He was removed for a pinch-hitter, however, in the seventh, and Danforth came in for the defeat.

Though the day was perfect, and the champions of the universe present, a somewhat small crowd was on hand, showing that thoughts of going to work have worried a lot of fans.

DUNDEE PASSES UP HUB DATE; SACCO WINS

By J. P. MURPHY.

Johnny Dundee, Italian miller, has cancelled his engagement with Frankie Young, Brit of New Bedford at the Arena next Tuesday night. The New Yorker wired over that a previous engagement in Philadelphia would prevent him from coming to the Hub.

The Armory A. A. has substituted a double wind-up, consisting of two twelve-round bouts.

They will bring together Terry Brooks of the West End and Charley (Kid) Thomas of Philadelphia, and Britt and the best foe obtainable.

The preliminaries go as originally carded. Bob Josephs vs. Bob Ambrose and Johnny Gray vs. Eddie Farrell.

* * *

Barney Snyder, Roxbury bantamweight, will oppose Johnny Rosner of New York in the principal bout of twelve rounds at the Douglas A. C., Chelsea, Monday night. Rosner recently defeated Paddy Gess of Cambridge, at the same club, making such a favorable impression that the members requested Matchmaker Jack Leonard to bring him back.

Billy Carney of New Bedford and Walter Bartlett of Lawrence are slated to furnish the ten-round semi-final. Bobby Dyson, New Bedford kayo artist, will meet Al Thompson, a fellow townite, at 118 pounds ringside, in an eight-rounder, while Young Bradley of Commonwealth, Boston, and Kid Dimold of Chelsea will open festivities in a six-rounder.

The directors of the Douglas Club announced a reduction in the assessments.

Young (Sailor) Sacco of East Boston drew a "bloomer" in the final set-to at the Commercial A. C.'s weekly entertainment and failed to be pleased. His opponent was announced as Tony Scatton of Philadelphia.

Sacco was slated to mingle with Kid Julian of Brooklyn, N. Y., but the Lippo entrant failed to put in an appearance. As a boxer, Tony is probably a good ballplayer. He was game, but that was all. Sacco hit him at will, and, with more steam behind his blows, might have put him away.

Kid Henry of Newark, N. J., bested Chick Hayes of Indianapolis in a rugged semi-final of ten rounds.

There were three preliminaries, two ending with the kayo route. Charlie (Chick) Miller of the South End stopped Battling Morris of the same district in three rounds, and Jack Fallon of Lawrence finished Young Samuels of the same place in two rounds. The Kid did a perfect dive.

Dr. D. J. Mulholland, club physician, would not permit Tommy Bobbins of Malden to perform against Augie Ratner of New York, at the Unity Cycle Club, Lawrence, Thursday night and, as a result, there was no main bout.

Corbett's Corner

By JAMES J. CORBETT.

The boxers are "doing their bit" in this war—and a very large "bit"—despite what some persons with "panning" dispositions have to say. Those who have read the "slacker" indictments of the boxing fraternity, returned by unfair critics, have come to think that practically every boxer of importance in the country has "ducked" serving the government in one way or another.

The charge is not true. I dare say that there is about as big a representation of boxers in the Army and Navy as is drawn from any other athletic branch in the country. Lists before me show that a great number of the top-notchers in the boxing world have given themselves to the service.

One of the pet methods used by folks who are accusing the boxers of lack of patriotism, is to point out that some of the stars are dodging active service by serving as boxing instructors in the army and navy for "when they should be in the trenches."

It seems to me, as a member of the War Department Committee, that in teaching boxing to the soldiers those men are performing a splendid service. And the War Department shows that it feels this, from the fact of greater value now in their positions as instructors than they would be on the battlefields of France.

CHAMPIONS AID CAUSE.

Benny Leonard, Mike Gibbons, Johnny Kilbane, Pachey McFarland, and all the others who are serving as boxing instructors in the army and navy are especial targets for the mud slingers.

The War Department officials insist upon keeping those boys right where they are. Why? Because it knows full well the great value of Leonard, Kilbane, Gibbons and the others as army instructors; knows that right now they can do a greater service as instructors than as units in the battle line.

In hand-to-hand fighting, which so frequently takes place in "No Man's Land," the necessity for complete knowledge in the use of a bayonet is a life and death necessity.

AIDS IN USE OF BAYONET.

The system of teaching boxing to soldiers has shown all the members that it takes only half the time to teach the correct use of the bayonet to a man who has boxing knowledge than it does to one who is not familiar with the science of cling work. Therein lies one of the many values of our army boxing instructor.

For the benefit of those who insist that boxers are not "doing their bit" and that practically all have carefully avoided engaging in any army work, I am submitting here a partial list of names of some of the high-class boxers who are serving the government, both as instructors and in the trenches—or preparing to serve in the trenches.

Army Instructors.

Benny Leonard, Johnny Kilbane, Packey McFarland, Mike Gibbons, Willie Ritchie, Frank Moran, Jeff Smith, Ritchie Mitchell, Bob McAllister, Joe Mandot, Tommy McFarland and Fred Dyer.

HARVARD-YALE CREWS CLASH ON CHARLES

The Harvard and Yale freshman crews were expected to furnish the fireworks at the annual Spring regatta, sponsored by the Crimson rowing management, on the Charles this afternoon.

The two crews were believed to be evenly matched and a close, hard race was looked for.

Another good number on the program was to bring the second crews of both colleges to the mark, and a curtain-raiser was provided in the triangular race between Noble & Greenough, second Harvard freshman and a picked interscholastic eight.

The race between the second crews, taking weight and height into consideration, favored Yale. The Blue oarsmen outweighed the Harvard sweepsters by practically ten pounds per man. Thus, nearly every Eli is a six-footer, while only one Harvard man crimped that honor.

The second eight has grit and a lot to drive when once it gets working properly. This brush was booked for a 6 o'clock, and was to follow a race for pahooned crews, in which Captain Emmet and several 'varsity oarsmen were to take part.

Emmet started his winning streak yesterday when he opposed a field of eight scullers and won the Carroll Cup over a one-mile course. R. Jenney, of Harvard's second freshman crew, the coach for Noble & Greenough, was second, and Batchelder, a 'varsity man, third.

Princeton, N. J., May 25.—Princeton was hopeful of reversing the earlier decision obtained by Harvard at Cambridge, when the two teams meet here this afternoon. The visiting nine has been traveling a rocky road since that contest, it being their only victory of the season.

Taylor of the Tigers was ready to pitch his best against the Crimson and aimed to make the series one all. Horween was Harvard's pitching selection.

PIRATES FEAR COMEBACK OF BRAVES

Bezdek Players Given Rude Jolt in Opening Game of Pittsburgh Series

Pittsburgh, May 25.—Is it going to be 1914 over again for George Stallings and his Braves? Judged on one consecutive pastime here, and Pittsburgh is again seeing the real thing, the Bezdek machine being an out-and-out sensation to date, the Braves look like the Braves of '14 and who knows but they will come through.

If Stallings had Rabbit Marsnaville and Iron-Man Richard Rudolph he certainly would have the entire league guessing. As it is, the Braves smack of being a vastly improved outfit and are bound to travel with the clubs all the way.

The opening game on Forbes Field was won by the Braves, Dan Parrick Regan, Stallings' Hispano-Hibernian hurler, up, 8-3. This afternoon Art Nehf was the Miracle Man's first selection for mound duty, with Tom Hughes second pick. Cooper was Bezdeck's nominee.

Had it not been for a bobble by Ned Smith, late in the frscas, the Pirates would not have tallied, so effectively did Regan perform.

Not until the fifth frame did the Pirates get a hit, and then only one little bingle. Long before this the Braves had won the game.

Bob Steele started the game for the Hucksters. The Braves nicked him for a pair of singles in the first frame, and a great catch by Caton of Smith's line drive only prevented a run getting from beginning then and there.

Hagan opened the third with a tap to Cutshaw, but Mollwitz dropped the throw. Rawlings sacrificed and Herzog got a single through Caton.

Reng singled, tallying the first run. Wicklandforced Kelly, Herzog reaching third on the play. After Wickland stole second, Smith's single counted Herzog. Wicklandwas killed at the plate on an attempted double steal.

In the fifth, Rawlings opened with a single, and was forced by Herzog. Peter Pitler cut out a double and Buck romped home.

That ended Steele, and Jacobs took up the burden. Wickland sacrificed Rehg to third, and Smith walked. Konetchy cleaned the bases with a two-bagger to right. Kelly walked, but was out stealing.

With two gone in the fifth, Caton singled for the Pirates' first blow. In the seventh, Smith, Steele's mild successor on Mollwitz's tap. After Carey had been retired, Hinchman doubled and Mollwitz scratched a hit to third on Cutshaw's out and registered on Caton's single.

One more was put over in the ninth. Mollwitz singled, and, after Carey was retired, scored on Hinchman's double to the tap. Pitler was put on to run for Hinchman. He stole second and third and scored on Cutshaw's double.

DARTMOUTH PLAYS AMHERST FOR GRADS

Hanover, N. H., May 24.—Tomorrow's commencement will include the Amherst-Dartmouth baseball game, the annual meeting of Phi Beta Kappa and the annual concert during the morning, the usual Class Day exercises in the afternoon and "Here To," a three-act musical comedy presented by the Dartmouth Dramatic Association in the evening. The Amherst game especially appeals to the older reuniting graduates, for the sake of the old-time rivalry of Triangular League days.

BUNTS AND BINGLES

By H. W. LANIGAN

PRESIDENT WILSON attended the tilt between the Senators and Tygers in Washington. Twas Red Cross day and approximately $6,000 was raised for the splendid fund. A baseball, bearing the President's signature, was auctioned off and brought $1,500. The combat ran sixteen innings. Telegraphic dispatches fail to state if Mr. Wilson stayed it out, or retired to the White House when he grew restless.

* * *

TY COBB finally got a hit. It was sandwiched in between four failures. Hence, the Peach took a further drop.

* * *

THE OPENING scrap between the rival Sox looms as the series will be stiffly contested. Joe Bush won his own game by lifting a home run. Babe Ruth's pitching Williamson heard from on the offence at the right time. Helping the visitors secure their first two counters by making a costly error. He also inserted a hit himself, but, like Walter, came through at the bat at the right time.

* * *

THE CROWD was a beggarly one for a Red Sox-White Sox game on such an ideal day. Only 5,000 turned out on a hot Sunday, but did not appear to be thirsty. Now wears Ellis, who was confident he would repeat over the Western Champions again, while others were less bold. That is probably why Manager Eddie Collins was passed up by Fenway fans.

* * *

THEN, JUDGED on what happened last Saturday, Wagner, Wood, Schalk, Faber, Cicotte and John Collins, who is practically a member of the club, had welcomes coming. But the populace kept quiet.

* * *

* * *

STANLEY COVELESKIE, Lee Fohl's dark-complected pitching ace, got mixed up in his third extra-inning combat since coming East. This time he won, disposing of the Yankees, thanks to Wood turning in a happy homer (Smoky Joe poled out an additional four-ply slam in the sixth) in the nineteenth frame. Covelesksie lost in thirteen innings to the Macks and in twelve innings to the Senators. Hence, he was due.

* * *

WHOOP-LA! The Cards won a game. Smyth's blow in the twelfth broke up the hectic duel between Southpaws Packard and Marquard.

Toss Around Kaiser's Cup; Get $18,000 for Red Cross

New York, May 25.—The boxing carnival at Madison Square Garden, arranged for the benefit of the Red Cross, was an unqualified success. The gate receipts alone totalled $30,000.

Some $18,000 was realised on the sale and re-sale of a cup which bore the likeness of Kaiser Wilhelm, and which no one seemed to want. Ultimately it is to be used in the best way for ammunition.

The cup, which is of gold, was presented in 1905 by the German Emperor to Wilson D. Marshal, prominent American yachtsman. It is worth $5,000.

Jim Coffey and Battling Levinsky boxed a six-round draw. Honors were with Levinsky at the start, but Jim Roscommon Rice had him staggering in the last session.

Harry Greb, Pittsburgh middleweight, outpointed Gunboat Smith in six rounds.

POINT TROPHY LANDED BY COMMERCE ARRAY

High School of Commerce won the tenth annual track and field outdoor meet of Boston secondary schools, scoring 90¼ points, while English High was runner-up, with 69½ points.

Jake Driscoll, High School of Commerce, sweated the senior 440-yard run record by 11-5 seconds; Earl Dudley, Boston Latin, knocked one-fifth of a second off the senior 880-yard run mark, and C. N. Arbenne, English High, hung up a new record in the intermediate broad jump. His leap was 20 feet 5 inches.

BOSTON TO HAVE TWILIGHT BASEBALL

Service Teams to Start Game at 6 O'Clock at Braves Field on Monday

In view of the baseball game at Fenway Park tomorrow afternoon between the Red Sox and the White, the entire proceeds to go to the Red Cross, the free service game scheduled for tomorrow afternoon at Braves Field between Harvard Radio School and Bumkin Island Naval Station has been postponed in order that there might be no counter attraction to prevent the Red Cross from getting the largest possible revenue.

Instead of playing on Sunday afternoon the Harvard Radio School and Bumkin Islanders will meet at Braves Field on Monday and a distinct novelty in local baseball will be introduced in that it will be a "twilight" game with playing starting not at 3 or 3:30 o'clock as usual, but instead at 6 o'clock.

This will give many people not able to attend week-day games at the usual hour a chance to see the game. Bumkin Island will bring up its band of forty pieces, and while the two teams are engaged in practice from 5 to 6 o'clock will render a military program.

The game will be absolutely free to the public, even though played upon a week-day.

BRAVES FIELD PUTS ON USUAL SERVICE CONTEST

The Bumkin Island Naval Station and Harvard Radio School teams clash in the free game on Braves Field tomorrow afternoon. The Bumkin Island station band, numbering forty men, will render a concert in advance of the contest. The game starts at 3:30 o'clock. No collection will be taken up, announces Business Manager Hapgood.

The game bids fair being keencontested, as the Bumkin Island team owns a clean record, while the Radio School outfit has bagged eight consecutive tests in a row.

The Sealing of Letters

THE use of wax for the sealing of letters became general in the Middle Ages. Red wax began with Louis VI. in 1113, and green about 1163. In the thirteenth century yellow, brown, rose, black and blue were added to the foregoing.

Making Your Chance

WILL TO WORK IN RIGHT DIRECTION

Grit, Gumption and Knowledge to Galvanize Action to Life Through Them Must Solve Problem

By Beatrice Fairfax

"If I had not such frightful handicaps I might succeed, too."

"GIVEN a good mind in a healthy body, any man may succeed," wrote a sage of years gone by. I want to amend that bit of philosophy. "Given a good mind in a healthy body, and the will to force that brain to work in the right direction, any man must succeed."

Each day brings me dozens of letters from boys and girls who pour out their pathetic tales of adverse circumstances, of their unappreciated efforts, of their bad luck.

Who do you suppose handed his chance on a silver salver to Henry Ford, to James J. Hill, to Frank Vanderlip, to Ulysses S. Grant, to Abraham Lincoln? Weaklings are the victims of adverse circumstances; strong men, who have it in their natures to succeed, bend circumstances to their own needs.

Grit, gumption and knowledge to galvanize action to life through them are bound to solve the problems of all the lazy folks who want me to hand them a chance they are too "shiftless" to earn and so would probably be too lazy to retain even if I were to put it right into their ineffectual hands!

Lena is grubbing along in a basement where the ventilation and salary is low. Lena dreams of a fairy Prince, perhaps, or it may be her thought is of a marvelous chance to make good. How ready is Lena for either if it should chance to come her way?

Lena is ignorant of history, music, art, the events of the great. To-day in this world of ours. She reads the murder cases and scandals in the newspaper, the Society column gets her breathless attention and the Comics claim a bit of her time. She speaks in a rough, piercing voice, her English is clangy, coarse and ungrammatical; her clothes are gaudy, but not neat; her manners are bad—if she were to be taken to a fine restaurant, Lena would be too frightened to eat!

Why should a Fairy Prince interest himself in her pretty, empty face? What can an opportunity do for Lena or with her?

Now here is my first suggestion to all those who write me impassioned pleas, "Pray, do find me a chance." Get ready to find your own chance. . . Go to the nearest public library station and ask a kindly librarian to direct your reading so you will know a bit of the history of all the great countries of our earth. After you have studied history, study next the great men who made history. The literature of the world will prove just as interesting (!) as the merry-merry magazine.

Study! Educate yourself. Watch the manners and deportment of the cultured people who sit near you in the cars or who stop at your counter to buy. Modulate your voice—breathe deep and hold a column of breath back of your voice. Don't try to impress other people with your ideas, but try to get a few ideas from them. Make a study of your department and its needs. Watch the people who come into it. Amuse yourself by trying to please others.

Now you have background for success. You have directed your mind into useful directions. Don't grit your teeth every time you hear "a good time"—for in doing your work thoroughly you will find a better good time than a hilarious party ever gave you.

After you have trained and educated yourself in general, find a branch of your work you enjoy and learn all there is to know about it.

Specialize! But specialize on a background and foundation of general knowledge. I don't care if you study lace and lace weaving or granite-ware or dust cloths—If you know your specialty your knowledge will earn the opportunity you long to have.

Women in War Work

MANY SEEK CLERICAL JOBS

By Elizabeth Ellam

SO many letters are coming to me from women who have homes, husbands and family ties, yet feel that they want to do some form of "clerical work" during their hours of leisure that I feel that I must deliver a message to them, personally. All of them want to work at home and all of them, also, are frank in their statement that they know nothing of stenography and typewriting.

There are none of these clerical positions to be had. Frankly, they do not exist. The United States Employment Service tells me that they have had a hundred applications for this sort of clerical work to one real opportunity.

Three Sons in Service

Mrs. T. J. F. of East Boston has written me a long letter on this subject. She has three sons in the service and two other children to care for at home. Her husband has tired of the family responsibilities and has gone the way of many husbands, leaving her to shoulder the burden alone. This woman wants work that she can do at home.

My advice to her is to look about in her own neighborhood for opportunities. Perhaps she is an expert mender, a darner of stockings, a natural conservationist when it comes to clothes. Let her make a canvass of the men who room in her neighborhood, and engage to do their mending every week. She will make their clothes last longer—and she will thus be helping in the conservation that the government is preaching in all lines. Perhaps she can press skirts, remove spots and stains, and mend waists and underwear well. Let her secure this work from some of the busy women in the neighborhood who will thus conserve their own time and their pocketbooks.

Here are two letters that I am going to publish in answer together, they are so similar.

Dear Miss Ellam—I was formerly a teacher in the public schools and would like to do war work. Do you know of any clerical work that I might do? I have knowledge of stenography or typewriting. Where would a person apply for such work?

MRS. A. M. W.

South Boston.

The second follows:

Dear Miss Ellam—I am writing to ask your assistance in obtaining some other employment for evenings. I am a working girl, having a mother depending mainly upon my support, and with the increased cost of living I find it very hard to get along on the small wages I earn. I am not very accomplished in anything special, but would you think I could get some writing to do?

G. T.

Roxbury.

Seriously, I know of no positions in clerical work that do not call for a knowledge of stenography and typewriting. There is a certain amount of filing done in factory offices, together with making out cards and similar routine work, but this is generally done by a very young girl at a very small wage.

My first correspondent, I believe, might apply to the Public Service Reserve, Room 177, State House, and if there is such an opportunity as she is looking for she will be directed to it. She does not state whether she wishes to work as a volunteer or for wages. If the former, she will find many opportunities, but it is another proposition to find the other kind of position.

To M. C. M.—Your letter was answered in the AMERICAN of Thursday, May 23, in an answer to T. A. I think you will find full information regarding yeowomen there.

Dear Miss Ellam—I am twenty-one years old and have a chauffeur's license. Do you know of any position I can find like what I am going to France? I can repair an automobile, too.

O. H.

Worcester.

Is there no Red Cross motor service in Worcester in which you can do volunteer work, driving certain hours each day? Such an organization does errands for the Red Cross drive, the Liberty Loan workers, and similar patriotic undertakings. You will find real service there.

Wants Camp Work

Dear Miss Ellam—Kindly let me know where I can offer my services to some camp hospital, as I have had a good deal of experience as a relief nurse.

Hopton, N. H.

The only way to go into a camp hospital is by enlisting in the Red Cross. You will secure full information regarding this at the National Red Cross headquarters, No. 125 Dayton street, and after passing your physical examination and filling out your required papers will be assigned for duty wherever there is need. It is not needed in this country you may state this fact, and you will not be sent overseas.

To Miss R. C. Revere—There are classes in surgical dressings at Red Cross headquarters, No. 142 Berkeley street, Monday and Thursday and Tuesday and Friday evenings. You may apply there to the educational department. Ten days is usually required before you will be given an assignment to classes.

To Miss E. M. H., Haverhill—There is no work at the navy yard except yeowomen's work, and regarding that I have already written full details. Why not enlist for farm work for July and August with the women's land army? Many college women are doing this. You will get your room and board, as well as a regular wage and excellent out-of-door life. Apply to Mrs. W. A. Copeland, Women's National Farm and Garden Association, No. 4 Joy street.

An Irresistible Appeal for Those Over There

PLANTING A GARDEN

SEED must be planted in a garden not only at the right time but at the right depth, says the National War Garden Commission.

Plant seeds shallow, unless special directions tell you otherwise. Depth of planting also depends somewhat upon the kind of soil. If it is heavy clay or soil that is continually moist the planting should be shallower than in sandy or dry soil. However, it is important you plant all seeds of the same row at the same depth. This gives uniformity of growth.

The soil should be firmed down on top before the rows are marked off. Fine raking will do this, especially if you finish the job by smoothing the surface with the back of the rake. When seeds are in the soil should be firmed over them by pressing down the earth with a hoe. Never pack the soil hard.

These directions apply to seeds in ordinary soils: String beans, 1 to 3 inches; lima beans, 1 inch; beets, half inch; carrots, half inch; Swiss chard, half inch; corn, 1 inch; cucumbers half inch; endive, half inch; kohlrabi, half inch; lettuce, half inch; muskmelon, 1 inch; onion sets (bulbs), 1 inch; oyster plant, half inch; parsnips, three-quarter inch; peas, 2 inches; potatoes, 5 inches; radishes, three-quarter inch; spinach, 1 inch; squash, 1 inch; turnip, half inch.

Britain's Woman Preacher

Great Britain's only woman preacher, Miss Maude Royden, draws crowds regularly to the City Temple, London, where (in spite of St. Paul's assertion that women should remain silent in churches), she is pulpit assistant to Dr. Fort Newton.

Miss Royden, who is the daughter of Sir Thomas Royden, of Cheshire, is a charming young woman and an eloquent speaker, with a rich, strong voice. Some may disapprove of her views, but none can doubt her sincerity. She is an ardent suffragist, and the editor of a suffragist paper.

More in Her Line

They were sitting in the twilight, and they were both very young. He was feeling sentimental, and started:

"Absence makes the heart grow fonder."

"Oh, I don't know," returned the up-to-date girl. "Did you ever try presents?"

What Vaccination Does

ITS GREAT BENEFIT TO HUMANITY

By Brice Belden, M. D.

VACCINATION is resorted to in order to induce a mild disease known as vaccinia, or cow-pox. Having had vaccinia, one is protected almost completely for a time against smallpox.

Vaccinia may be defined as a general disease with a local manifestation resembling the pock of smallpox, artificially brought about by inoculation with the virus of cowpox. It is believed to be smallpox modified and mitigated by passage through the cow.

Smallpox is sometimes acquired even after vaccination, but it then runs a mild course, as a rule, and is seldom fatal.

Vaccinia is induced by inoculating the upper part of the left arm with fresh virus obtained from the udder of a calf suffering from cowpox. The addition of glycerin to the virus preserves it, and also serves to free it from organisms.

In the course of preparation of glycerinated vaccine tests are made which insure purity and harmlessness.

Once upon a time inoculations were made with virus taken from the human pock, and certain diseases were undoubtedly transmitted thereby at times, but this humanized virus has been entirely supplanted by the bovine virus nowadays, although vaccination is still attacked upon the old ground for no rational reason so far as this particular "objection" is concerned.

Other objections relate to the question of individual rights as against the rights of the community. Still other objections have to do with certain complications which occur as a result of secondary infections, such as abscess, erysipelas and lockjaw—all preventable if the vaccination wound is treated properly in accordance with the principles governing the surgical treatment of wounds in general.

All of which means that vaccination is a safe and enormously beneficial procedure both to the individual and the community if a pure vaccine, derived from the proper source, is used, and if the wound is properly treated until healed.

The first vaccination should be performed, if there are no contra-indications, about the fourth month of life, the second about the seventh year, and the third about the twelfth year.

The part selected should be cleansed with soap and water, then with 70 per cent. alcohol, and finally with pure water. A number of crossed scratches should then be made over an area about one-eighth of an inch in diameter with a sterilized needle, deep enough to allow of a little oozing of pinkish serum, but not of blood. The virus should then be applied and well rubbed into the scarifications by means of the needle. After drying, the wound is dressed and regularly attended to thereafter.

About four days after the inoculation a sort of pimple appears, surrounded by a ring of redness. By the sixth day the pimple becomes a kind of blister, with a distinct depression. By the eighth day this vesicle, as it is called, is perfected and is surrounded by a wide zone of inflammation, which itches a good deal. By the tenth day the ring of inflammatory redness begins to fade, and a drying process sets in, with the formation of a thick brown crust which becomes detached in the fourth week. The resulting scar is at first red, but after several months it becomes paler than the surrounding skin and has a punched-out, pitted appearance which is characteristic.

During the development of the pock there may be lassitude, slight fever and enlargement of the glands in the armpit.

Social Hygiene

Dr. Katherine B. Davis, director of the Section on Woman's War Work of the Social Hygiene Division under the Commission on Training Camp Activities, will work through women's clubs in the campaign to educate women in matters of social hygiene.

"We are issuing a pamphlet urging women's clubs to devote a day or two next Fall to the discussion of social hygiene," said Dr. Davis. "It is recommended that they secure a speaker from the Commission on Training Camp Activities or other accredited source who can outline the government's work for soldiers and sailors in reference to clean living, medical protection and recreation."

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

Don't Hurt Your Husband

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have married a man who is in every respect a wonderful man, only he is insanely jealous of me, even of my women friends. Last October he was called and at present is in the army. Three months ago I met a man and have grown to love him dearly. Of course no one knows of our meetings and I have told him so many times that were the world to know of our love they would not believe us innocent of wrongdoing. My husband has made me miserable by his jealousy, and it is in this man's companionship alone that I find any comfort, although I love my husband and would not hurt him for the world. Do you believe any woman can really love two men at the same time?

TROUBLED.

DO you think a generous woman who knows her husband is "insanely jealous" would risk any hurt to him when he is absent fighting in the cause of liberty? Apart from any question of "propriety," this seems to me most unworthy of womanhood or—patriotism. Please, my dear friend, give to your absent husband the loyalty every decent woman must feel for a soldier lover Over There.

Share His Sacrifice

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I would like to know if it is proper to go around with other men when my sweetheart is in France. My friends tell me I should go out and have a good time, but I think if he is over there fighting that it is only a small sacrifice for me not to see other men.

PUZZLED.

WHY not give your soldier boy the joy of knowing that you are loyal and devoted and that sacrificing a few pleasures for him seems as nothing to you in comparison to the splendid sacrifice he is making for your sake and that of your country? To cut yourself off from all pleasure and so to grow morbid and blue would be foolish, but what I suggest is that you go about in groups or with other girls and that you give this man your loyalty and permit no other man to feel that you are ready to forget your soldier sweetheart for him. The excitement of flirtations and attentions could never make up for your failing your own ideals and those of your lad in France.

The Four of Hearts

A SERIAL OF YOUTH AND LOVE

The Two Cousins and Their Sweethearts Enter Conspiracy Against Precise Mrs. Livingstone

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER LX.

Copyright, 1918, Star Company.

MILTON VAN KAUN and Dora Livingstone had had their talk out.

Dora, with a calmness that had surprised even herself, had told him of her desire to end their engagement.

"We have never loved each other," Dora affirmed after a while, "I have bored you and you have bored me."

In spite of her relief, she protested when Milton suggested that the truth should be confessed to her parents at once.

"Oh, no—please not yet!" she begged. "Let us wait for a day or two until Cyn and I decide what we are to say or do. We are both scared almost to death," she added with a nervous laugh.

"I don't blame you," her companion said. "I am a bit fussed myself."

At last the front door closed and Dora's light footstep sounded outside. The girl looked up eagerly as her cousin entered and dropped down upon the couch with a gesture of despair.

"Oh, Cyn!" she exclaimed, "What do you think? Mother waylaid Milton in the hall just as he was leaving and told him he must dine here tonight. Then she telephoned Gerald and asked him to come, too. Both men tried to get out of it—but no man can escape mother. Oh, dear, isn't it funny?"

"Tell me about your talk with Milton," she suggested, when the pair were again calm.

Not Much to Tell

"There's not much to tell," Dora said. "He knew already that I did not love him. Oh, Cyn—it's good not to be engaged! I may as well enjoy it for a few hours, for when mother knows the truth—as she soon will—good-night!"

Cynthia smiled at the slang expression; then she sighed.

"When I think of the combination arranged for us this evening I feel as if I must die!" she declared. "Dora, for pity's sake, what are we going to do?"

"We'll have to talk the thing over with Milton and Gerald tonight," Dora replied. "They will have to face the music with us. We might all confess in unison that we are not going to get married.

But, jest as they might, the girls found themselves confronting a serious dilemma. Both knew enough of the temper and will of Mrs. Livingstone and of Mr. Livingstone's aggremon in her plans, to realize that a difficult experience was ahead.

It was at the dinner table that night that the hostess threw a conversational bomb, causing a mental panic among her listeners.

"Well, young people," she remarked, "I have a surprise for you all. Today mailed the invitations for our beautiful double wedding."

Dora started so violently that she upset her water glass.

"Why, mother!" she exclaimed. "What under the sun did you do that for? Two weeks before a wedding is an abundance of time to send out invitations."

"I do not agree with you," her mother said. "A few days more than the fortnight is better form. It gives people ample time to select wedding presents."

She glanced expectantly at Milton, but he did not meet her gaze. Nor did he make any comment on the subject, although his hostess referred to it several times before leaving the table.

At His Club

Stephen Livingstone was dining at his club tonight and Milton Van Saun and Gerald Stewart did not stay in the dining room to smoke. Instead, they accompanied the ladies into the drawing-room. Here, Mrs. Livingstone bade them good night gracefully, preparatory to going to her room.

As soon as she had gone, Milton, hitherto so silent, spoke.

"The time has come, my friends," he declared, "for a council of war. Gerald, shall we decide what's to be done?"

"I would suggest that we consult Dora and Cynthia, first," Gerald said.

"Good!" Milton agreed. "I will appoint myself a committee of one to talk the matter over with Cynthia. You can discuss it with Dora."

"Cynthia," with a bow, "let us adjourn to the library, where these two people won't disturb us!"

(To Be Continued.)

DRESSES FOR THE BABY

By Rita Stuyvesant

EVERY mother knows how very difficult it is to keep her baby well dressed. Babies up to three years old are forever getting dirty, and it does seem as if mother is never done cleaning the youngster. A great deal of trouble can be saved, however, if practical little frocks are chosen, ones that are real fun frocks and good-looking, too, for no child is too small to be smart.

Whether for play or dress-up occasions, there are cunning little models that economical mothers can copy at home. Before the warm weather comes the provident mother will lay in an ample supply of washable frocks for her two-year-old.

Dresses that will stand the strain of hard outdoor play can be made of fine dark colored chambray, with bloomers under them. A little one-piece frock with sleeves and body cut in one is easy to make, and a belt of self material can hold the fullness in place.

A jaunty touch of trimming that is not inconvenient in the laundry or in the way of play can be introduced in the form of a smart necktie, or perhaps a bit of washable braid. Of course short sleeves are the best, and frocks that slip on over the head (the neck lacing up) are more convenient than those whose buttons are continually pulling off.

Instead of petticoats, little bloomers are more comfortable. These should be very simply made and finished with either elastic run through casings or a narrow band buttoning to the underwaist.

For dress-up and "company" wear white frocks are indispensable. But patriotic women are no longer using linen for the baby's frock, because it is sorely needed for aeroplane wings. A new cloth, equally as lovely, is offered and it is dear to the heart, also, of soil and wears indefinitely. It has all the beauty of the finest linen at one-third its cost.

Dainty dresses can be made for baby with pretty blue or pink stitching. An adorable little frock recently seen at a bazaar favored the high neck, long sleeves and double overskirt.

The front of the tiny blouse was finely tucked and stitched in colored thread. The simple collar, split both front and back, was outlined with French knots. One of the features that made this little frock quite distinctive was the smart Empire belt, fastened with two pearl buttons and buttonholes of a miniature size. The frock closed in the back from neck to hem and could be opened out and ironed flat, a convenience busy mothers will appreciate.

If you have a baby and are kept busy "dressing" her, try some of these practical patterns and your work will be cut in two. Make her play dresses real fun frocks and see the dressy ones smart and economical.

RECIPES FOR WARTIME

Cottage Cheese Loaf With Beans or Peas

One cup cottage cheese, ¼ teaspoonful soda to neutralize acid, 1 cupful cooked beans, 1 cupful boiled rice (dry), 1 cupful dry bread crumbs (corn or Victory bread), 1 tablespoonful chopped onion or ½ teaspoonful onion juice, 2 tablespoonfuls savory fat, chopped celery or celery salt, or pimentos, or Worcestershire sauce, or mixed poultry seasoning.

Beans and small lima beans may be used whole. Mash larger beans or put them through the meat chopper. Mix beans, cheese, bread crumbs and seasonings and form into a roll. The roll should be mixed very stiff, for it will become soft and sagging when baking. Put it in a moderate oven, basting occasionally with a well-flavored fat. Serve with tomato or other sauce.

Suggested Dinner Menu—Cottage cheese loaf made with dried lima beans; fried onions, buttered carrots, dandelion greens, spinach or green salad; oatmeal bread; coffee; apple or berry Liberty tart (i. e., one-crust pie with crust made of ½ par cent. cornmeal and served with cottage cheese on top).

Sweet Potato Soup

2 cupfuls baked sweet potatoes, 2 tablespoonfuls melted butter or bacon drippings, 1 quart scalded milk, 2 tablespoonfuls flour, ½ cupful cooked rice, salt, cinnamon.

Press potatoes through a potato ricer, measure two cupfuls, then put through ricer again with rice, stir into the butter and gradually return to double boiler. Brown flour, add fat having smooth texture and add to the hot milk mixture; do this gradually; season with salt and a dash of cinnamon.

ADVANTAGES OF BUYING BONDS ARE MANY

By ROBERT S. WEEKS,
Of Harris, Forbes & Co., Boston.

The successful placing of the third Liberty Loan has again increased very largely the number of people in this country who know something about what a bond is. Seventeen million people subscribed for bonds of the third Liberty Loan—a wonderful record and one which again shows the determination of the American people to prosecute the war to a successful conclusion.

Now that so many more people in this country than ever before own bonds, it is well perhaps to call attention to the fact that many people have not in the past realized to what an extent they have been right along indirectly investing in bonds, and enjoying the advantages which bonds have made possible. The insurance company in which a man, his family or his property is insured, invests its funds largely in bonds. So very likely to a considerable degree does the bank in which he deposits his money.

The school where he sends his children has probably been built from the proceeds of a bond issue, as have many of the other public improvements of his community, the railroads which developed the country nearly, the trolley lines on which he rides, etc. Briefly, many of the greatest conveniences of the present day would have been impossible if bonds had not been considered safe investments by a very large number of people.

When a man has money to invest himself, quite the most natural thing for him to do is to go to someone thoroughly experienced in money matters to get such advice. But this again will not do. The one giving the advice should be thoroughly responsible financially—should do something to prove this responsibility beyond question. When you consider the good health of yourself or family you engage the services of a competent physician of high reputation. In the same manner, to guard against legal troubles, you never sell the title to a good lawyer. It is just as important a money matter that you be sure of the investment bankers with whom you deal.

The three important requirements of safety in any investment which may be purchased are as follows:

1st—Security, or the safety of the principal invested.

Second—Ready convertibility into cash in case a change of investment be desired, or emergency arise.

Third—As high a rate of interest as can be obtained without sacrificing either steadiness of income or safety of principal.

WEAK TONE ON STOCK MARKET

Boston Elevated opened quotations at 72, and after advancing to 72¾, fell back to 72. Both issues of Massachusetts Electric were weak.

After the end of half an hour there was less pessimism and a slightly higher level of prices.

Mexican Petroleum, Sinclair oil and International Paper had small gains to their credit. Some minor semi-industrial recorded both gains and losses, at one time selling for 135½, its opening price, up 2¾ points, and later selling off ¼, to 132, after-wards rising to 135¾, its opening price.

U. S. Steel opened with 6,000 shares at from 104 to 106⅝. It remained near the latter price during the greater part of the morning. Anaconda opened off ½ at 65; Utah Copper off ⅝, at 79½. Baldwin Locomotive started at 96, off 1¾, then rallied to 96¾. American Woolen opened at 60, up ¾, then dropped to 57¾, off 1¾.

Losses of a point or more in the first hour were shown by Atlantic Steel at 65; American Linseed Oil 40¾; Bethlehem Steel B, 83¾; Distillers Securities, 60¾; General Motors, 122; Great Northern Ore, 37¾; Inspiration Steel, 59½; Republic Iron & Steel, 85¾; Southern Pacific, 82¾; Tobacco Products, 58½, and Industrial Alcohol, 122¾.

United Shoe Machinery, after showing strength at 47 fell back to 46, off ½, but American Telephone & Telegraph was firm. New Haven was up a half, at 41½, and Boston & Maine off ¼, at 26¾.

Coppers were quiet. Swift & Co., at 108, had lost a point.

TOOK RED CROSS DOLLAR; BARELY ESCAPES BEATING

A motorman for the Boston Elevated had a narrow escape from being beaten by a mob in Dudley square, Somerville, when he refused to surrender a $1 bill which a little girl had dropped after a subscription had been given her for the Red Cross.

The "little mother" was selling carnations for the Red Cross, and the contributor gave her $1, which she dropped. The bill blew into the street.

The motorman picked up the bill and refused to surrender it to the juvenile solicitor until the threats of the crowd frightened him, when he gave the bill to a police officer who happened along.

MOTO TRUCK TRAFFIC DEMANDS ROAD WORK

By C. F. DONNOCKER.

Road building has been the subject of experiments for years and the settlement of the motor truck has caused engineers more trouble to find a "binder" that is suitable. The ordinary truck traffic was not so bad, but the increase in amount of traffic over the roads due to war conditions is a matter which road-builders will have to face at once.

Norman H. Halliday, manager of the Mack Motor Company, of Plainfield, N. J., in speaking of this condition, says:

"Motor transport goods will be among the major important considerations during the next few years. Our present roads will not stand up under constant heavy truck traffic, and, in my opinion, roads with deep foundations, costing much more per mile will be absolutely necessary. Take, for instance, the road from Boston to Providence. Today there is nearly five times as much heavy motor truck traffic going over this road as there was ever in that road, and the road is beginning to show the strain. This condition is caused by the railroad tie-ups, embargoes, etc. How long will that present Providence road last?

"Asked regarding government restrictions, the importance of motor car and the endeavor of tire manufacturers in co-operation with the government to meet the minimum needs of unnecessary tire sizes, J. C. Weston, vice-president and director of sales of the United States Tire Company, said:

"The intention of the government in the control and restriction of the importation of rubber is to conserve shipping space, and the program that has been laid before the manufacturers of rubber goods has won their unanimous support for the War Trade Board and the Shipping Board.

"In addition, the manufacturers of tires are heartily cooperating with the government in the manufacture of the smallest possible number of sizes. The elimination of unnecessary tire sizes

"Plans for the withdrawal of certain tire sizes from use by manufacturers of motor cars will not in any way interfere with the manufacture and distribution of the tires to users who need those particular sizes at any

The Red Cross Street Worker Is Doing Great Service

Help Whenever You Have a Chance

Copyright, 1918, by the Star Company

It takes real nerve and real courage for a girl to go out on the street asking for Red Cross contributions.

It is no trouble at all to contribute.

But it is trouble to ask other people to contribute.

Remember that the next time a young woman in the subway or on the street corner offers you a chance to do something for the Red Cross.

She is doing in the asking far more than you are doing in the giving.

She stands on her feet all day. She is often embarrassed by rudeness. She is very tired, sometimes despondent, when she goes home at night.

You can make her work very much easier for her if you will.

Give as often as you can. The money you give will do far more good on the battlefield than it will in your pocket.

If you have given all you can afford to give for the day, tell the Red Cross worker so pleasantly, and with an apology.

Tell her you wish you could help her. Show her that you appreciate what she is doing.

Keep up her spirit as you would keep up the spirit of the boys in the trenches.

They are fighting for you, and she is fighting for them.

The whole country is responding splendidly to the Red Cross appeal, as indeed it should.

But too much money cannot be gathered.

The noble organization of mercy that is represented by the little red symbol can use every cent that it gets.

The more you give the more and better work will be done among our soldiers.

Do not confine your gifts to your home town or your office.

Make a big contribution, of course, but do not let that bar you from making little ones.

You would hesitate to go out on the street yourself asking for money even for so good a cause.

Make it easier and pleasanter for those who are willing to do this.

Make them understand that the heart of the whole American people is with the Red Cross, that they honor themselves, as indeed they do, when they enlist in its service.

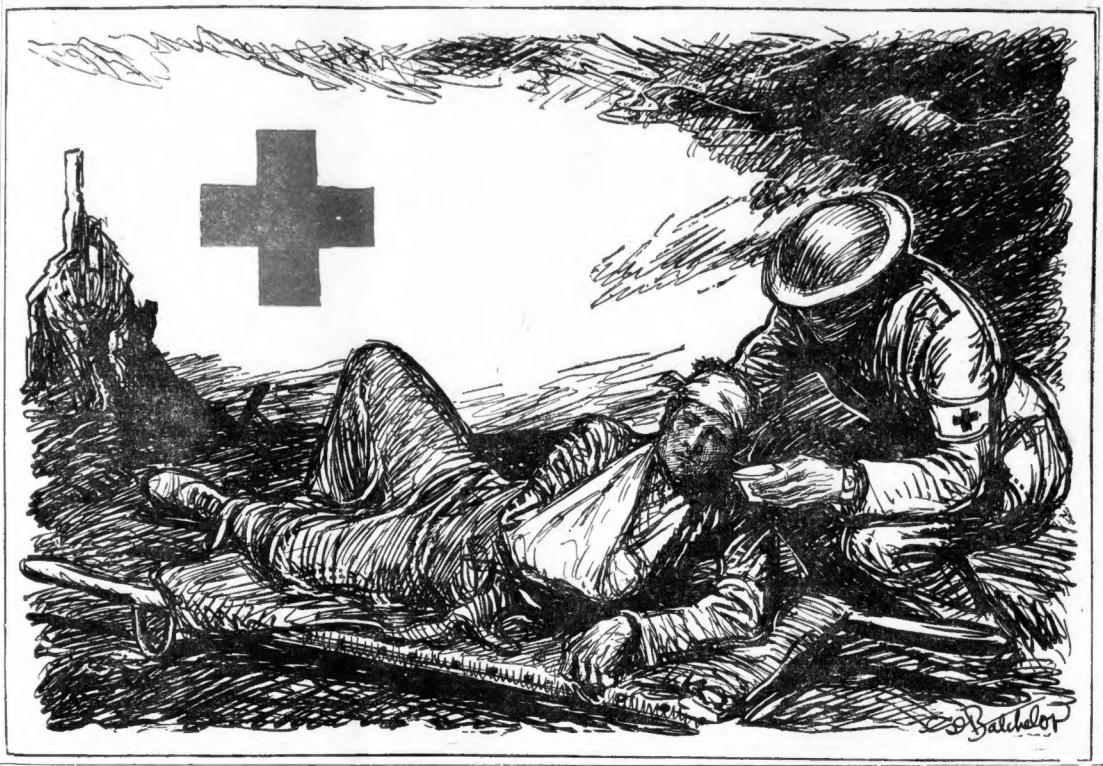
If every man and woman gives ten cents two or three times a day an enormous sum of money will be raised.

It will be needed.

Give it if you can.

If you cannot, always be agreeable and pleasant to the Red Cross workers, and never fail to thank them for the work they are doing for the soldiers.

HE GAVE TILL IT HURT---DID YOU?



Attempt to Oust Eastman Is Denounced

Representative Benjamin Loring Young denounces the attempt to reorganize the Public Service Commission as an attempt to deprive the State of the services of Mr. Joseph B. Eastman, one of the Public Service Commissioners.

Ever since the Public Service Commission was given an effective power over the public service corporations there have been regular, recurring attempts to reorganize the commission. By this sort of legislative tinkering with the commission the corporation crowd forced George W. Anderson out of the commission and the services which the State lost the National Government gained. But Governor Walsh, always loyal to the public interest, appointed in Mr. Anderson's place Joseph B. Eastman.

Mr. Eastman's appointment was a terrible shock to the gentlemen on State street. In every respect he is the equal of Mr. Anderson. For industry, ability, courage and loyalty to the public interest Mr. Eastman has no superior among Public Service Commissioners of the entire United States. He is recognized at the National Capitol as one of our ablest experts upon public service corporation matters.

There is a peculiar story behind this last attack upon the Public Service Commission. It is a particularly unhappy and indecent attack at the very moment when the public control plan, suggested by the commission, has just been enacted into law—a plan which has attracted nation-wide attention and approval.

Originally these corporation interests planned to kill two birds with one stone. They were not only after Eastman and Macleod, but they were after Lewenberg and Schaff of the Gas and Electric Light Commission. What has happened to make them abandon the attack on the Gas and Electric Light Commission the AMERICAN does not know. But since the Gas and Electric Light Commission has before it an important rate case involving the largest electric lighting company in the State, it is well that we have been spared the scandal of an attempt to pack that court in the very midst of an important proceeding.

This is one of the many illustrations occurring every day of the futility and folly of an attempt to control our Public Service Commission by regulation. The moment the regulators show the slightest symptom of independence the corporations go to the Legislature, or the Governor, and on one pretext or another they force out the independent men. Consequently few men want to be regulators of these powerful and conniving companies.

As the AMERICAN has often said before, these men will get rid of Mr. Eastman sooner or later even though they should fail to reorganize the board, for the uncertainty of the place and the attacks from behind, which the corporations are able to compel the Legislature to make, is altogether too disagreeable for a man of Mr. Eastman's ability to stand long. Some of the representatives who are constantly attacking Mr. Eastman are not fit intellectually or in their instinct for public service to black Mr. Eastman's shoes.

Let their constituents understand that this attack upon Mr. Eastman is the old story of the wolves slandering the faithful watch dog to the sheep.

Renaming Boston Streets

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Let one citizen hasten to congratulate you on your firm attitude in the matter of changing the names of streets now bearing German or near-German names. A bas les Boches!

It is, of course, extremely unfortunate that there should be so many more streets than there are names, but the fact that Boston has very many more streets than any other city of its size and population in the known world and presumably only its pro rata share of names may in some measure account for the sad condition.

Fortunately, there are some good, even patriotic, names available. Washington is now used only eighteen times, an almost disgraceful paucity of use for such a distinguished name. Adams and Franklin a miserable twelve times each, and Mount Vernon but eleven times.

Every one of these could be used at least twenty or thirty times more and thus heap added honors upon the distinguished patriots whose names they bear. It simplifies matters very much, especially for strangers, to have as many streets of the same name as possible and as widely distributed as conditions will permit. Since there are less than one hundred streets whose names bear a Germanic taint these four names should suffice for renaming them all.

But lest for some reason there should be a slight excess, Park is a good honest name, and at present used only about a dozen times (not counting variations). Since the city has but one park there must be many streets sufficiently remote from anything that in anywise resembles a park to appropriately bear the name.

While we are on the subject, why not also consider the great number of streets with only one name?

Seeing that there are so many more names than there are streets, there is reason to fear that many excellent names will remain unused. Calling street intersections "squares" will of course help a little, but this resource will soon be exhausted.

ADMIRER.

MRS. ELLA WHEELER WILCOX WRITES

On Our Wonderful War Workers—Men and Wo men Cast Aside the Conventional to Swing a Paint Brush or Do Well Other Duty for Soldiers

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

PARIS, May 2.

THANKS to the wonderful liberality and the amazing dispatch of our great country, the food of our soldiers in France is of the best, and the supply is constantly increasing. It MUST increase, and no one in America should begrudge any deprivation of luxuries or even comforts to effect a continuation of the nourishing necessities for the army.

It is gratifying to hear the sick and wounded men in the American hospitals talk of the delight they find in their meals. Lying for weeks in a hospital ward waiting for wounds to heal, or bones to set, there is little to think about or anticipate from hour to hour save the satisfying of a convalescent's appetite.

Home Seems Near

A visit to the hospital kitchen makes one feel that America is not far away. "The things that mother cooked" are being prepared in enormous quantities and of the very best materials, and by the best cooks America can enlist in her service. And there are the most skilled physicians in attendance.

Never in any history of world wars were such preparations made and such achievements carried out in a year's time for the care and comfort of an army as our America has been able to accomplish. From Detroit came some months ago a unit of thirty physicians and sixty-five nurses and several hundred enlisted workers of all kinds. College men were prominent, and literary men and all had been accustomed to toil with their brains rather than their hands.

Yet when they faced the situation which they encountered Somewhere-in-France they did not wait to find congenial tasks or work which they deemed worthy of their social and intellectual status.

There was an old building in a hospital in a short time and equipped with everything needed for the care and comfort of sick and wounded soldiers arriving both from troop trains and the front.

College men who had never known anything more of house painting than its smell, grasped brushes and went to work making the defaced and soiled walls bright and clean. Others learned the use of saw and hammer and astonished the native workmen who had said it would require a month to erect a needed barracks by putting one up in three days.

The spirit in which every one of our American soldiers meets these undreamed of situations make an observer's heart leap with pride and admiration. Such splendid optimism, such gayety, such a sense of humor, as they all seem to possess. If they chafe under the work they are compelled to do, instead of being in the front of the battle line as they all dreamed they would be when they enlisted, no one is the wiser.

When I visited the cemetery, a half hour's walk from the hospital, and saw the row of graves on a gentle hill, up beyond old tombs, centuries old, and knew American soldiers were lying there, it was like a hand clutching at my heart. There were some thirty of these graves; all made within a half year. All were graves of young men who had fallen ill of various maladies, or met with accidents, while in training for the big battles they anticipated with the ardor of youthful imagination.

But, sad as their untimely fate seemed, one realized how few the number of graves was when compared with the many thousand soldiers who had been trained in this locality during America's year in the war. Other graves will be added, week by week and month by month; but these men are our heroes, even though they did not reach their goal.

The knowledge and proof of knowledge grows constantly that life is eternal, and that every soldier who went to death with ideals of self-sacrifice and duty in his mind will be given the high place in worlds beyond which such ideals win, and will be given work to do to aid humanity as an invisible Helper from the neighboring spheres.

Let the mothers of these sons dry their tears and know that their boys are living and loving them, and that a reunion with them is as certain as that death is our universal friend and will never fail to come to each one of us in time, and lead us to those who have gone ahead.

Decorated Above

Let every mother, too, whose son has died in these hospitals know what splendid care they have received; and how the good nurses have mothered them, and what tenderness has enveloped them during their last weeks or days of life. I saw a nurse who could not speak without tears of a boy who had died from mastoiditis after an heroic battle of two weeks. He had a fighting chance for life, but succumbed at last. But he has only gone ahead. And he is surely wearing the decorations of the Invisible Helpers, and he will surely come near his mother very often when she is calm and comfort her.

BLUE STARS

"WHEN I'm in France I'll be dreaming of you"—
It floated upward from the deck below.
A boyish voice with pathos in its depth,
The song of one not called to fight the foe,
And suddenly beside me, as I watched,
A woman, one with eyes intensely true,
Walked quietly away, and on her coat
There gleamed a tiny Service Star of Blue.

I waited in a busy store one day,
And close beside the counter's wide array
There waited yet another very quiet,
A little figure muffled deep in gray.

Attracted by the woman's eyes I paused,
The light that glowed and burned there was so old.
"A Service Flag with two blue stars," she said,
"And one"—the voice broke low—"and one of Gold."
I wandered from the place, with vision clear,
Into a narrow by-street grimly poor.
The houses there were close and faded brown,
The gardens, half-forgotten, held no lure.
The meanest home in all that shabby row
Had curtains drawn, but murky lights shone through,
And dim before my startled gaze there hung
A Service Flag with four bright Starts of Blue.

And yesterday up in our little church
Eleven stars looked from their field of white
Into the quivering faces there below.
Into the eyes where dimness blinded sight.
Two through the silence, tense with unshed tears,
Thronged thoughts of those who fight for me—for you,
The organ pealed the anthem of the Free,
A kind voice blessed each Service Star of Blue.

Now, yonder, through the crimson Golden Gate,
Night trails her misty banners 'cross the sky,
And somewhere, far beyond where shadows fall,
I know lies bleeding France, where heroes die.
I know that if each shining light above
Were numbered for the valiant and the true
In God's great field of heaven over us,
Would gleam two million steadfast Stars of Blue.

A Liberty Crop vs. the Ukraine

By David Lubin

CONTROL of the food producing resources of the Ukraine promises to be of decided advantage to the morale of the enemy.

An endeavor must be promptly made by the allies to counteract this; the enemy's forced food levy from the Ukraine must be met by a free-will offering, by an American Liberty Crop.

As a means toward this end I would suggest that each State in the Union, through properly authorized committees and through contributions and voluntary service, should, for the harvest years of 1919 and 1920, raise food products on its public State lands and on the national lands within its boundaries; said food products to be known as the "Liberty Crop," to be delivered to the warehouses designated, and to be tendered by the States, free of charge, as a free-will offering to the United States government and to the allies.

If all this is to be done a resolution should at once be passed by the United States Congress authorizing the States to use the national public lands for this purpose, and further empowering the President to take up the matter of the proposed "Liberty Crop" with the Governors of the several States, when:

(1) Each Governor shall summon meetings of farmers, businessmen and others in his State, who shall form committees, which are to be empowered to proceed with the details of the work, all on a volunteer basis, free of charge, excepting in the case of laborers performing the field work of cultivating and harvesting.

(2) The funds for this purpose shall be obtained from contributions collected by the committees from the people generally.

(3) States having but a small area of public lands could contribute an equivalent toward these "Liberty Crops" by subscriptions in money, by the loan of agricultural implements and machinery, and by the application of labor.

(4) To perpetuate the memory of this event Congress could authorize suitable memento in the form of medals, engravings or "Liberty Altars," to be presented to each State contributing its ratio to the "Liberty Crop."
